Where Mr. Rockefeller Lives.

Mr. Ford Had His Shoes Shined.

J. D. R. Sees An Automobile.

Five Partners Were Mistaken.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DAYTONA BEACH, Feb. 11.

HERE, ON the most perfect motor track in the world, made fresh by the ocean on its beach each day, Sir Malcolm Campbell, has driven his automobile, the Blue Third, 260 miles an hour, faster than 380 feet a second. He expects to beat that record, possibly on Sunday.

AND HERE, in a plain wooden house, back from the ocean, at the edge of the river, lives in winter John D. Rockefeller, who supplies to Campbell and the whole world the power that drives their engines.

Mr. Rockefeller is the one that interests Americans, for his work will be important to the world when primitive speed records shall have been forgotten.

MR. ROCKEFELLER wired:

"Please come up and play three or four holes of golf."

But the weather is drizzly, and no golf when it is drizzly. This earth interests John D. Rockefeller, who is not far from ninety-five, and he takes precautions that are necessary to make life last.

Carlyle complains bitterly because the old monk failed to describe King John when that king visited the monastery, told nothing of what the king wore, how he looked, what he said. That mistake shall not be made here.

MR. ROCKEFELLER, who had at his breakfast table fifteen friends and relatives, including grandchildren, a clergyman, Dr. Brooks, and an old friend, Mr. White, approaches, shaking his own hands, as he comes, to indicate that he is glad to see you.

He looks stronger than he did three years ago at Lakewood, when he played golf, according to his custom, without ever failing to hit the ball.

His skin is clear, pink, his clear keen, blue eyes are bright and see everything. His appearance would delight a doctor, anxious to keep a good patient. Mr. Rockefeller wears a woolen suit of dark gray, with double-breasted short coat. He has a semi-soft collar, which prevents pressure on the big blood vessels and the pneumogastric nerve, and wears a small blue bow tie, with white spots, fastened loosely.

YOU OBSERVE again the marvellous resemblance to the original de Medici, founder of the great Florentine family, who, with Jacques Coeur of France, were the world's two greatest business men, until John D. Rockefeller came to make them look small.

The late O. H. P. Belmont had an old engraving of the first Medici, and each friend to whom he showed it asked where he got that queer picture of Rockefeller.

HENRY FORD gave the best description of John D. Rockefeller's face. He told this writer:

"Motoring through Florida, I wanted to see Mr. Rockefeller, of course. So I went to a barber shop, had my shoes shined and drove to Mr. Rockefeller's house. Mr. Rockefeller came in at the exact minute agreed, and WHEN I SAW THAT FACE, I KNEW WHAT MADE STANDARD OIL."

When Mr. Rockefeller saw Henry Ford's face, he knew what made universal fast transportation for the whole world. But that is another story.

THE HENRY FORD incident interested Mr. Rockefeller. Said he:

"I remember it well. It was the first and last time I ever saw Mr. Ford, a good citizen, a very great man."

Mr. Rockefeller seemed to like especially Mr. Ford's statement:

YESTERDAY morning Mr. Rockefeller was interested in automobiles. Alfred Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, wanted Mr. Rockefeller to see the new Fisher body device that prevents draughts in automobiles, even at high speed, with windows open, and H. J. C. Henderson, vice president of Fisher Brothers, had driven from Miami, 260 miles, a Cadillac equipped with the new invention.

Mr. Rockefeller investigated the mechanism, and understood the plan in a moment.

AFTER HE had satisfied himself concerning the invention that, according to doctors, will prevent many cases of pneumonia, Mr. Rockefeller told his visitors something about the old days when this country was being built up, rapidly and successfully. Events and names of 1865 and earlier were all clear in his perfect memory.

He laughed with his guests, as he told how all of his partners once agreed that he, John D., knew nothing about the oil business. Mr Rockefeller humbly agreed with them, did not wish to embarrass them by his incompetency, and, to make everybody happy, bought them all out.

Their poor opinion of Mr. Rockefeller's business judgment cost them about five hundred million dollars. But, as Mr. Rockefeller himself says, money is not everything. He has proved his sincerity by giving away to science, education,

Fights Dog Death Penalty

WOMAN GETS LAWYER FOR DEFENSE

Legal Moves Started To Save 'Sandy' In Biting Case

To the rescue of the mongrel dog, "Sandy," who was condemned to death in Criminal Court yesterday, came a Carrick woman today.

Aroused at the death sentence imposed upon "Sandy" for his alleged biting of an East Pittsburgh child, the woman retained Attorney Charles D. Coll to move legal machinery to save the animal's life.

MASTER PAROLED

Sandy's death was a condition of the six months' parole of his master, Frank Sechan, of 196 Elder street, East Pittsburgh, who pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of keeping a ferocious dog.

Sechan was paroled for six months by Visiting Judge S. L. Reed, of Cambria County, after it was testified Sandy had bitten Gordon Zawaski, 4, of East Pittsburgh. Knocked down and scratched by a stone thrown by a group of older boys of whom Zawaski was one, the animal attacked the Zawaski lad, according to the testimony.

Attorney Coll said last night that if necessary he would file a motion for a new trial for Sechan. Judge Reed had left the city last night.

No definite time was set for the execution of "Sandy," but it was understood that if the sentence were not carried out within a reasonable length of time, Sechan would be accused of a parole violation.

Meanwhile W. F. H. Wentzel, of the Humane Society, announced last night he would visit the dog today to learn if the action against the dog was justified.

Wentzel said his move was occasioned by more than a score

FORD FAMILY'S GUARD BATTLES CONSTABLES

Fight Marks Effort To Serve Writ On Edsel

DETROIT, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—An investigation by the Prosecuting Attorney's office was in prospect today of an altercation between three constables and a Ford family guard that marked an attempt to serve a subpena on Edsel Ford.

A report to Miles N. Culehan, assistant prosecutor, told of a rough-and-tumble encounter of the guard and one of the constables last night on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Roscoe B. Jackson, in Grosse Pointe Farms, while guests at a dinner hurried from the house believing a holdup was in progress.

The subpena was one issued recently in the suit involving the Ford Motor Company and the Sweeten Automobile Company, of Philadelphia.

Learning that Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford were to be guests at the Jackson dinner, Clayton Phillips, a constable, posted himself on Jefferson avenue during the evening and two other constables established themselves near the entrance to the Jackson grounds.

Phillips said that when he saw a car in which he recognized Mrs. Ford and believed he saw Mr. Ford, he attempted to drive alongside it, but that a smaller car following "kept ramming me and shoving me along. I nearly went into the ditch."

Arriving at the Jackson home, Phillips said, the man driving the escorting car got out and grappled with one of the constables there. Meanwhile Mrs. Ford got out of the car and asked what the trouble was.

Phillips said he explained he had a subpena for Mr. Ford. He said Mrs. Ford replied:

"But he isn't here."

CARNERA BLOW SENDS SCHAAF TO HOSPITAL

Boston Boxer Remains Unconscious After New York Bout

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—The room clerk at Polyclinic Hospital today said that Ernie Schaaf, Boston boxer who was knocked out in the Madison Square Garden ring last night by Primo Carnera was in a semi-coma this morning and his condition was considered serious.

The clerk, to whom all inquiries as to Schaaf were referred, said he was not in a position to give the diagnosis of the boxer's injury.

Dr. William Walker, physician of the New York State Athletic Commission, said last night that Schaaf was suffering from a "slight concussion" of the brain.

Schaaf went down from what appeared to be a light blow to the face in the thirteenth round of the scheduled 15-round setto with the giant Italian and was carried from the ring unconscious.

DEATH TOLL REACHES 175 IN GERMAN EXPLOSION

International News Service.

NEUNKIRCHEN, Saar Valley, Feb. 11.—A report that sabotage may have been responsible for the disastrous gas tank explosion in the Neunkirchen Iron Works here was investigated today as the death toll mounted to 175, with the injured at more than 2,500. Hardly a family in this city of 40,000 was without a casualty.

The night watchman, who miraculously escaped, said that the first explosion occurred in a small benzol tank. Flames quickly spread across the tar-soaked ground and ignited the huge gas tank before the plant's fire department could be mobilized.

The power house, coking plant, machine shop and three blast furnaces were destroyed. Total damage was estimated at $1,000,000.

300 IN PLANT

Three hundred men were working in the plant at the time. Many of them being either killed or seriously maimed.

Shortly after 1 p. m. it was announced 60 bodies had been recovered by searchers and rescue workers.

Authorities in charge of rescue operations declared the estimate of 175 dead was conservative and that this figure probably would rise.

It was estimated at least 115 bodies were still buried under the debris of ruined houses and masses of steel, hurled over a wide area by the blast.

$50,000 FOR RELIEF

President von Hindenburg and Vice Chancellor von Papen sent messages of condolences to the Saar government, and $50,000 was appropriated to speed relief work among the injured and destitute, many of whom lost their homes when the explosion virtually turned the city into an inferno of fire and wreckage.

The stricken town presented a gruesome scene as many residents, who fled in terror when the explosion took place, returned to watch hastily recruited rescue workers dig among the ruins of their homes in search of dead and injured.

With regular hospital facilities taxed far beyond their limits, first aid stations were set up. Stretcher bearers moved quickly through the town with their burdens of dead, dying, and suffering.

HELP RUSHED

Additional help came from all parts of the Saar Basin as word of the disaster spread. Physicians, nurses and medical equipment were rushed to the scene. Transportation at first was hampered because wreckage was strewn over nearby railroad tracks.

Many women and children were victims of the blast, and the wails of the injured children added to the horror of the night, through which rescuers worked with frantic speed.

Messages from Basel, Switzerland, said the detonation had been heard there, 250 miles distant.

ATTORNEY SHOT FROM AMBUSH

Accompanied by his wife, who was unable to drive the car, McCall drove three miles to a hospital after the unknown person fired bullets in his head, above his heart, in one wrist and the other hand.

Hospital physicians say his condition is critical.

Mrs. McCall says she armed herself and ran out to aid her husband when she heard the shots. Her efforts to call help revealed that telephone wires had been cut, isolating the home.

BARE FIRE PLOT PERILING HOTEL

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 11.—An attempt to destroy the old Gable Hotel and Gable Theater, adjoining, which endangered the lives of 10 persons, was revealed today by police, who said they were searching for two men who registered as Joe Devito and A. Martin, of Detroit, last night.

Several gallons of inflammable material attached to powder fuses were found on the third floor where the men had a room. One of the gallon bottles had exploded. Police said a fuse leading to a quantity of explosive in the theater had burned out. The damage was estimated at $8,000.

Second Cold Wave Due Here

Another cold wace is due to sweep into Pittsburgh tonight, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman announced today.

On the heels of the heavy snowfall will come a drop in temperature, sending the mercury down to five or ten tonight. Tomorrow it will be fair and colder. Real winter will prevail for several days.

The State Highway Department issued a warning over the police teletype of eight inches of snow in Armstrong County, the heaviest fall in Western Pennsylvania. All roads were open, it was said, and crews and snowplows were clearing roads or cindering icy stretches.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—New York city's streets and sidewalks were hidden today under more than eight inches of snow—the heaviest single fall in eight years. The precipitation began shortly after midnight and at 8 a. m., forecasters said there was no indication of an immediate letup.

Thirty thousand men were put to work removing the snow from the streets and sidewalks. It was the second time in a week that jobless men were given temporary work by the city.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—While the Middle West prepared today for a second assault of subzero cold from the Northwest, highway workers announced the rescue of 34 persons marooned for three days in a rural schoolhouse.

Their motor vehicles stalled in Tuesday's blizzard, the 34 waded through deep drifts to a country schoolhouse near Morris, Ill. One of them was a coal truck driver and had a three-ton load of coal which was used to keep the schoolhouse warm. Another drove a bakery truck, and the refugees rationed out his bread, pies and cakes.

16 SEIZED HERE IN DOPE RAID

Fifteen Chinese and a white man were arrested by federal narcotic agents, city detectives and plainclothes police in simultaneous raids early today upon two houses in Pittsburgh's Chinatown.

One Chinese, who attempted to flee, was arrested after a short chase in which a shot was fired into the air.

Six opium pipes, cooking bowls, yenshe ashes and other narcotics were seized, agents said.

Eight Chinese were arrested at 529 Second avenue, where Yee Wong, 65, was reported to have been in charge, while Charles Yee, 42, and five other Chinese were arrested at 532 Second ave[illegible]

Yee Long Chong, 65, [illegible]529 Ross street, was arrested at Fourth avenue and Ross street after the chase when he was seen at Second avenue and Ross street by detectives talking to William "Toughey" Gold, 40, of 6349 Monitor street, a former pugilist, they said. Gold was arrested.

Hit-and-Run Driver Kills Imperial Man

Steve Mihalic, 60, Imperial farmer, was struck and killed in the Lincoln highway near his home last night by a hit-and-run driver, according to a state highway patrol report.

Found along the highway by a passing motorist, he was removed to the office of Dr. W. S. Broadhurst at Imperial, where he was pronounced dead of a skull fracture, police said.

RYAN, ANACONDA HEAD, DIES

Mr. Ryan, born in Michigan in 1864, had been ill only about a day. He had long been prominent in the copper industry.

He was an officer or director of several Anaconda subsidiaries. He was chairman of the boards of Andes Copper Mining Company, Chile Copper Company, and Chile Exploration Company, and held directorships in American Brass Company, American Power and Light Company, Consolidated Gas Company, of New York; the National City Bank of New York, and Postal Telegraph and Cable Corporation. He was president of the Montana Power Company, and of United Metals Selling Company.

Clothing Set Afire By Pipe, Farmer Dies

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Feb. 11.—Jacob S. Wright, 61, a farmer, was found burned to death in his home last night. Neighbors who discovered the tragedy, said he evidently had fallen asleep in his chair and his pipe ignited his clothing.

Girl, 3, Seriously Burned at Grate

Severely burned last night when her clothes were ignited at an open grate in her home, Sarah Davis, 3, of 1132 Wood way, Braddock, is in a serious condition today in the Braddock General Hospital.

U. S. MAN GRILLS LINDY SUSPECT

ROANOKE, Va., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Joe Bryant, one of two Roanoke youths arrested in the attempted extortion of $50,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was questioned today by John M. Keith, expert Federal investigator.

Immediately upon Keith's arrival, Bryant was taken from his cell in the Roanoke City Jail to the office of the District Marshal. There he was quizzed by Keith and T. N. Stapleton, Federal investigator who proceeded Keith here.

Norman Harvey and his wife, both under arrest in connection with the extortion notes, were not disturbed. When they will be questioned was not disclosed. The woman was released under $5,000 bond earlier in the night.

Thus far the trio has denied any attempt to extort money from the Lindberghs, through threats

Racketeers Solicit 'Child Feeding' Cash

Collectors impersonating members of the Board of Education in collecting funds ostensibly to feed hungry school children are entirely unauthorized, according to a warning issued by Reuel W. Elton, manager of the Better Business Bureau of Pittsburgh.

Elton said the appeal for money is a part of a nation-wide "racket" which has collected large sums in other cities. Public funds are being used for the child feeding here.

Mollison Reaches Rio After Sea Hop

RIO DE JANIERO, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Capt. James A. Mollison, Scottish flier, arrived here today from Caravellas, where he was forced to descend for the night on account of bad weather after a flight across the South Atlantic.

Friend Denies Lincoln Was 'Rail-Splitter'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 11.—The story of Abraham Lincoln splitting rails is vastly overdone, in the opinion of Mrs. Sarah Pearson, of this city, who lived on the farm adjoining Thomas Lincoln's place in Illinois. Mrs. Pearson says:

"Abe was too lazy to split rails and told me himself once that he never split more than a dozen in his life.

"Instead of splitting rails, he was more likely to slip away from the woods and come to the house to read. He was nothing but a bother around the house where everybody was expected to work. His father finally gave up trying to make him work, and sent him to town to work for a lawyer, so he could study."

Mrs. Pearson draws most of her Lincoln lore from her father, James Warner, for she was only a small girl when Lincoln was President. But she recalls how she used to sit on his lap when he would return from Washington to Illinois, and how he liked to tease her by rubbing her face with his beard.

There is another story that Mrs. Pearson spikes, too. The Lincoln family was no poorer than "other folks," she says. Thomas Lincoln had a yoke of oxen, a few cows, some sheep and hogs, and in general was as well supplied with this world's goods as most other settlers.

And as for food, they had "more to eat than many folks today," because game was plentiful, she says.

Carnegie Laid Foundation Of Fortune Early in Life

Here we are told, too, how the foundation of his fortune was laid. His first investment was a purchase of 10 shares of Adams Express Company stock, paid for by mortgaging his mother's home. But a still more profitable undertaking was the purchase, also on borrowed money, of an eight interest in a sleeping car company—an investment which was yielding him $5,000 a year by the time he was 25.

The biographer tells, also, of Carnegie's purchase, at this time, of a new home in Homewood, and of the social life there.

ROOSEVELT TO BE DRAWN INTO FIGHT OVER 'DICTATORSHIP'

CONGRESS ASKS COMPROMISE ON ECONOMY

New Plan Modifies 'Fascist' Power of Defeated Program

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt may be drawn into the "financial dictatorship" controversy which has split both Democratic and Republican forces in Congress.

Resentment following the proposal of Democratic House leaders to give the new President power limited only by the Constitution to slash expenditures and abolish bureaus apparently had doomed this proposal.

NEW 'POWER' PLAN

But a new plan, which would give the new President far more power than that voted by the Senate to reorganize the government and cut expenses, will be presented.

All congressional leaders agreed to give the President broad power, but find difficulty in drawing the line. The President-elect is expected to be asked for advice.

The situation growing out of the proposal of House leaders to give the President extraordinary powers is declared by members to be one of the most amazing in peace-time history.

While demands have been made outside of Congress for a dictatorship or a Fascist government, Congress has thus far spurned such proposals.

TAX CUT PROBLEM

Now, with leading members frankly declaring Congress cannot combat organized minorities and relieve the tax burden by cutting expenses, the proposal is made to give the President the emergency power for two years.

Under the compromise plan, the President would be authorized to reduce expenditures 10 per cent. It would apply to all except contractural obligations.

Representative Wood, (Rep.), of Indiana, who represented President Hoover as opposing the 'dictatorship' plan, indicated he would support the revised plan.

The 'veterans bloc' was on guard lest power should be given to slash veterans' benefits without Congressional sanction. The inflationist group planned to oppose all extreme economy measures.

The Harveys and Bryant were arrested Thursday when Bryant presented a check for $17,000 at a Roanoke bank and received blank paper cut to the size of currency. Taking the package Bryant met Harvey, and both attempted to escape when they recognized a police officer. Harvey was captured as he attempted to enter an auto in which sat his wife and their child.

Suspect Harvey

She told authorities she knew nothing of the plans of her husband and his companion. Bryant claims he found the planted check in a stump near his home. Harvey's connection, according to his claims, is driving Bryant to the bank.

Police declare they arrested the trio after holding several conferences with the men in a Roanoke hotel, and after two letters had been received by Lindbergh. These letters are said to be in Bryant's handwriting. The letters demanded $50,000, but Detective Robert Johnson declares he succeeded in having them reduce the sum to $17,000, after representing himself as a Lindbergh agent.

United States District Attorney Joseph Shaffer, a former member of Congress, has announced he will arrive Sunday from his home in Wytheville, Va., to assume charge of the case which has been directed by his assistant, T. K. Parsons.

Bond for Mrs. Harvey was given by Harvey's mother, although the home of her son and daughter-in-law is described as a whitewashed cabin through which the snow was blowing when officers visited it yesterday.

The trio was arrested less than a year after the tragic abduction of the first Lindbergh son, Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

YOUNG SEEKS REALTY PICKUP

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(A.P.)—A vast program to strengthen the real estate situation in New York City was pressed forward today in the belief that proper adjustment of real estate values would be a prelude to a general pickup in business.

Owen D. Young, who announced the program last night, declared that real estate values were usually the last to be adjusted in a cycle. Experience showed, he said, that when such values had been properly adjusted to changed conditions business generally became accelerated.

The plan aims to restore real estate here to a sound basis through the refinancing of mortgages and the reduction of mortgage interest charges. It has for its core a new $10,000,000 reality stabilization corporation headed by William Church Osborn and it will involve the co-operation of banks, mortgage companies, insurance companies, the investing public and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

FIRES ROUT 15 TO STREET

Fire swept through the two-story home of William Apple, 227 Dunseith street, resulting in damage estimated at $2,000 last night. Fireman Matthew McDonough, of Engine Company No. 4, off duty, assisted fellow firemen in fighting the blaze. He suffered a cut on the hand and was treated at Mercy Hospital.

The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Rose Kane, of 229 Dunseith street. She went to the Apple home and found the family absent. Another neighbor sounded an alarm.

Fifteen Negroes were routed to the street when fire early today threatened three frame houses at 2, 3 and 4 Lane way, North Side. Those routed were Mrs. Goldie Brown, her daughter and granddaughter, of 2 Lane way; John Shannon, his wife and five roomers, 3 Lane way, and Mrs. Florence Bradley and her four children, of 4 Lane way.

Two alarms were sounded. The damage was estimated at $1,500.

BLAST WRECKS PLANT HERE

The one-story concrete compressor plant of the Triangle Gasoline Company, Pine Hollow road, Kennedy Township, was leveled by an explosion of gas heard throughout the Ohio Valley, North Side and North Boroughs shortly before last midnight.

The blast apparently was caused by a frozen line, firemen said. Thousands of gallons of gasoline stored in underground tanks and several wells were endangered. No one was injured and the damage was estimated at $10,000. An official of the plant explained that the company produced gasoline from the wells and that the vapor was placed under compression in the part of the plant which exploded.

A. A. Bock, night attendant at the gasoline station, was alone in the place when the compressor blew up. Windows in several nearby homes were shattered. The flames illuminating the sky were visible for miles.

SENATE FORCES GIRD FOR DRY BATTLE

Fight to Cut in Half Enforcement Fund Promised

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The battle flags of prohibition warfare were being raised in the Senate today as opposing wet and dry armies prepared for clashes over slashing enforcement funds and repealing the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Blaine repeal resolution was to be made the Senate's "unfinished business" as soon as the pending War Department appropriation bill is passed. Then it may be laid aside to permit action on the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor Supply bill, which carries an $8,440,000 appropriation for prohibition enforcement.

PROGRAM AGREED

This program was agreed upon by Republican and Democratic leaders. It presaged a real prohibition war in the Senate next week.

Democratic leaders were eager to get the repeal resolution enacted before March 4. It would remove the cantankerous repeal issue from the special session to be called by President-elect Roosevelt, and insure ratification of repeal within 18 months, thus giving the Roosevelt administration an opportunity to obtain revenue from legalized sale of alcoholic beverages.

The fight over enforcement funds was assured when Senator Tydings (Dem.), of Maryland, announced he would move to halve the $8,440,000 appropriation. He obtained a 10 per cent slash in the Senate appropriations sub-committee, which considered the bill, but the full committee reversed that action and restored the $8,440,000.

TYDINGS OPPOSED

He said:

"Of course, I'm going to move to cut that enforcement fund in half. With the states repealing their state enforcement acts and Congress about to submit repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, it's just a waste of money to spend nearly $9,000,000 on enforcement."

The drys of the Senate may start a fight of their own to eliminate some of the restrictions thrown around the enforcement fund.

NEWEST BRIDGE BEING USED

The new $1,600,000 South Tenth Street Bridge, one of the last of the county structures authorized in the bond issue of 1928, was to be opened today. No formal ceremonies had been arranged. The Pittsburgh Railways Company was to send over the new span the first trolley car to operate in the immediate vicinity in two years.

With the completion in July of the Mt. Washington roadway extension, the new span will form a connecting link between Grandview avenue and the Armstrong tunnels and Forbes street.

COUNTY BOARD IN PAY HUDDLE

The County Commissioners today were to continue private conferences, preparing for a showdown on salary reductions during the final budget sessions next week. The Commissioners spent most of yesterday behind closed doors. It was reported they would hold a Sunday afternoon session.

Chairman C. C. McGovern declared the board was going over salaries not only in their own offices but in those under other elected officials, in an effort at standardization. He cited present inequalities, some employes being paid $125 a month for the same work for which others get $275.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, chairman of the executive committee of elected officials, said he had no intention of calling a meeting of elected officials to discuss the Commissioneds' refusal to meet with them. He continued:

"I am willing to go into any reasonable discussion on the pay question. From past experience I have every reason to believe I will receive just treatment concerning salaries in my office from the salary board."

of telephone calls in which sympathizers asked an investigation before the execution.

'FRIENDLY DOG'

The dog is seven years old. Sechan, who is also the owner of the dog's mother, said last night his pet was primarily a watch dog. He said:

"Sandy is friendly. I have never known him to injure anyone who was kind to him. If he has bitten it has been done in self defense."

Sandy's new friend, who is seeking to reverse the Judge's ultimatum, declared:

"Most dogs to whom people are nice will not bite anyone. If what I understand is true, the animal was justified in biting the child. Before I would see 'Sandy' executed, I would like to be sure that he is guilty."

Mr. Wentzel said:

"Of course, if the dog was justified in the attack of which he was accused something ought to be done in his defense. I will have it thoroughly investigated today, and act accordingly."

Attorney Coll said:

"I will do everything possible to prolong the dog's life. I believe under the circumstances that a new trial might bring out many things in 'Sandy's' favor, and that a less harsh verdict might result."

Notice of Schooley Indebtedness Filed

Controller James P. Kerr has filed notice in the Prothonotary's office, to Roy D. Schooley, former city treasurer and collector of delinquent taxes, that he is indebted to the city in the amount of $198,490.

A statement of claim was filed against Schooley about two weeks ago. The Maryland Casualty Company was made a party to the notice, filed to protect the city in future legal moves.

JUDGE VOIDS 10 COYNE VOTES AS PHANTOMS

More Ballots Thrown Out Because of Dual Markings

Judge W. Heber Dithrich, in charge of the recount of 27 ballot boxes sponsored by the Election Frauds Committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association, today voided 10 ballots for phantom markings. The phantoms appeared in the sections in which the names of State Senator James J. Coyne and Assemblyman Charles T. Dwyer, Republicans, appeared.

Ten ballots from the Eighth District of the Fourth Ward were held out late yesterday, after Judge Dithrich threw out six ballots from the same box because they bore double markings: An X in the straight Democratic column and X's written by another person opposite Republican candidates.

Thomas Dolan, judge of election of the district appearing before the recount board a few days ago, said the district board had completed the count about midnight and that he remained in Engine Company No. 14, where the polls are located, playing cards all night. He said he turned the ballot box over to Alderman Louis Wicks at 9 a. m. the next day.

Among additional members of the recount board appointed by the Common Pleas judges when the board was increased from five tables to seven is George E. Rieke, 4780 Scioto street, the Democratic candidate for State Senator against James J. Coyne.

Other members include Sarah Flynn, Samuel Mawhinney, Edwin S. Gordon, Samuel Brourman, Joseph M. Egan, Margaret Connelly, Thomas E. Renton, Murray Gibson, George L. Tinney, Andrew Wagner, Joseph Hutter, Frank L. Miller, Mrs. Helen D. Steele, Mrs. Margaret Hyde, William Schulte, C. H. Hollister, Joseph White, William H. Store, John T. Duggan, James J. Skeehan, Charles F. Mazon, Herman Carletti, Philip Sandmeyer and Mary A. Gardner.

Barber Shop Window Broken With Bricks

Two bricks were hurled through the barber shop display windows of Jack Irwin, at 1229 Franklin street, North Side. Police said they believed the episode a "flare-back" to a recent price war among barbers in various parts of the Pittsburgh district. One of the bricks struck a cash register.

fighting disease and to religion, more than five hundred millions.

Many subordinate officials in his companies live far more luxurious than does Mr. Rockefeller, by the way.

A WONDERFUL face is Mr. Rockefeller's. Not even Sergeant could do it one-tenth justice. In its deep, steady eyes, many wrinkles, frequent smiles, you see the old-fashioned American power that built this country from nothing, built it commercially, industrially and scientifically.

Mr. Rockefeller will be drawn into no controversy or criticism. If you ask what he thinks of our tax system, under which incompetent politicians take money from ability, as fast as it is made, he replies:

"I think it might be as well to encourage men of exceptional power to build up the country in the future, as in the past. But I have enough to do, without advising others."

Nothing of this sort affects him. He watches the sun go down slowly, knowing that he has a son able to carry on his work, according to his wishes. The hundreds of millions that he made by giving the public what it wanted at constantly lower prices have been donated to foundations that will carry out his ideas of wise public use, for generations to come.

Money does not actually interest him, any more than the water in the ocean back of his cottage. His idea is that the water and the money should be made useful.

He has his quiet pleasures, including the knowledge that his five partners were mistaken when they agreed that John D. Rockefeller knew nothing about the oil business.

Squires Band for Safety With Guns and Prayers

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—The squires of Belmont County have rallied 'round a central organization with prayers, bloodhounds and pistols in the common cause of personal safety.

Now 33 justices and 40 constables have united in an organization that can be mobilized at a moment's notice if any of the jurists are attacked. Constable Ludwig Hoge, of Bridgeport, is president.

But the squires are not depending solely on their group in defense against what they interpret as acts of vengeance by culprits who have faced them in court.

Sad-eyed bloodhounds slumped about the bench of Squire Earl Gossett at a trial last week and 22 of them patrol his yard by night.

Passenger Plane Afire, Pilot Saves Eight Lives

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—To the calm courage of Pilot Eddie Bellandi, of a Transcontinental and Western air liner, seven passengers and a co-pilot owed their lives today.

Knowing an attempted landing on the outskirts of Bakersfield was fraught with peril, the pilot headed for the Kern County airport and a few minutes later set the big plane down as flames threatened his wing tanks.

Bellandi and the co-pilot assisted the passengers from the burning ship, and only one, Mrs. Adaloide Helwig of Berkeley, was burned. A few minutes after the last passenger was removed the plane burst into a roaring inferno and was quickly destroyed.

Only the ship's all-metal construction prevented its destruction in midair and the death of its nine occupants, officials of the air line reported.

The plane was southbound from San Francisco to Los Angeles. Sparks from the nose motor ignited fuel in the gasoline line, causing the fire, officials reported.

CAPTAIN OF MUTINY WARSHIP TO BE COURT-MARTIALED

2 WOMEN, 8 MEN RESCUED FROM SHIP IN GALE

Plane Sent by Paper Saves Group After 36-Hour Battle

WESTPORT, Conn., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—The story of how a mother, a young girl and eight men fought a 36-hour battle with hunger, terrific cold, and terrifying gales in a crippled schooner on Long Island Sound was told today as the 10 rested in safety.

Mrs. Alexander Hauser and her nine companions, who braved the sea's wrath in a search for her lost son, were rescued last night after an amphibian plane of the New York American spotted their helpless craft at perilous mooring off Middle Ground Lighthouse.

Mrs. Hauser, disregarding the suffering through which she had passed, smiled with happiness when she learned that her son, Edward Connolly, 19, had returned safely from the sound after she set out to find him Wednesday night.

Evidences of the hardships through which the party passed were the frozen hands of Skipper John Mulhaley, of the 30-foot fishing schooner Saugatuck. He was taken to a hospital, as was his daughter, Betty, 18, who was in a state of collapse. Salvatore Gilbertie, reporter for the Bridgeport Times-Star, who also was in the party, was ill. Mrs. Hauser and the rest of the party were suffering from exposure.

They had left Westport in a hurry Wednesday night, without taking on provisions. Not long after their departure the rudder broke. With the mercury in the thermometer dropping fast and the sea rising, they tried in vain to repair it, and their plight became more serious when the engine refused to turn over.

Hanging a red sweater in the rigging as a signal of distress, they drifted helplessly eastward, while steamers passed bellowing in the fog, unaware of their plight. Yesterday morning, as they passed two miles beyond Middle Ground Light, a tiny rock about nine miles off Bridgeport, Louis J. Allen, the light keeper, put out in a launch and towed them to the rock, where the vessel was moored.

DARROW TIRES IN FIGHT FOR BOY SLAYER

Forced to Rest ; Case Ends; Youth Learns Fate in Week

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—One week from today 18-year-old Russell McWilliams will know if he must pay with his life for the slaying of William Sayles, street car motorman, during a robbery.

If McWilliams loses it will be Clarence Darrow losing. The 75-year-old Chicago lawyer emerged from semi-retirement since the famous Massie trial and made his first important court appearance to espouse his philosophy and plead for the life of young McWilliams.

But Darrow had to cut his plea short. His associates said he was too exhausted by his efforts yesterday afternoon to appear at last night's session. The prosecutor, Robert E. Nash, quickly closed the sta 's argument, again asked for the death penalty, and Circuit Judge Edward H. Shurtleff took the case under advisement to give his decision next Saturday.

Twice McWilliams has been sentenced to death on his plea of guilty. An attempt to change the plea in his third trial—ordered by the State Supreme Court—failed and Darrow based his plea for mercy on the contention that the "boy never had a chance." In his closing arguments he said:

"When the books are balanced between society and this boy, you will find that society owes him."

With detail, Darrow outlined the childhood of the youth. He pictured McWilliams as brought up against a dull, drab, distasteful background of poverty. The robbery and the subsequent slaying on August 31, 1931, Darrow blamed on a culmination of environment and the influence of liquor.

Failed to Heed Police Warning of Plot, Dutch Charge

International News Service.

BATAVIA, Feb. 11.—Capt. Eikenboom, commander of the battleship De Zeven Provincien which was seized by mutineers, was relieved of his command today.

Capt. Eikenboom will be court - martialed aboard the cruiser Java for his alleged failure to heed police warnings that mutiny was brewing. The ship was recaptured after a Dutch seaplane bombed it, killing 22 of the mutineers.

The remainder of the mutineers have been taken to Onrust Island where they will be held incommunicado pending a full investigation of the disorder.

Witnesses Relate Captur of Warship Mutineers

BATAVIA, Java, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—First-hand stories of th five-day voyage of the mutineer manned Dutch cruiser De Zeven Provincien and the battle that ended it were told here today as a destroyer arrived with the bodies of 22 Dutch and native sailors who were slain.

Twenty-five men were injured and they also arrived on the destroyer Piethein in Java harbor today.

The first-hand stories of a Dutch officer, who was a prisoner of the mutineers, and a newspaperman who saw the battle of the Sumatran coast yesterday pieced together the details of the Zeven's fantastic career.

The newspaperman who was on one of the pursuing ships said one of four planes which attacked the mutineers dropped a first bomb as a warning. It fell nearby in the sea. But after the second fell, a great cloud of smoke hid the superstructure of the De Zeven. Then came the flash of signal of surrender.

The attacking squadron closed in. The newspaperman said:

"We saw boats around the Zeven and men jumping into them, while bamboo rafts were being thrown into the sea. Native sailors struggled franticall to reach them.

"We could see the bodies and a pile of knives on the deck.

"The bomb had fallen just aft the bridge, which was blown away. Some mutineers were blown to pieces."

The officer, Baron De Vos Van Steenwijk, describing the start of the mutiny, said he saw the European engineer and some native hauling in the boarding ladder. The baron said he stopped them but later, after he had gone to bed, the ship pulled out. This was last Sunday morning about 2 o'clock. The captain was left behind in port.

During the early morning, the baron and other officers were pulled from their beds and threatened with death if they attempted to dissuade the mutineers, now commanded by a native.

CULT SLAYERS FACE CHARGE

INEZ, Ky., Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Eight members of a Kentucky hills religious cult, seven of whom are accused of killing Mrs. Lucinda Mills, 72, in a weird sacrificial ritual, were to be arraigned today.

All have been held in the county jail here since the woman's body was found by officers in the Mills mountainside cabin as the participants in the strange ceremony were about to execute a burnt offering on an improvised altar.

Babbling in a strange tongue at times, the prisoners have prayed almost continuously for deliverance. John H. Mills, son of the aged victim, who has been accused of choking the woman to death, had to be chained to his cell, so violent did his ravings become. Cult members said he had been directed to choke his mother by a "divine command."

Six of the other prisoners are held as accessories and the seventh as a material witness.

John D. Meyer Gets State Legal Post

John D. Meyer, former United States District Attorney, today had been appointed special deputy attorney general of Pennsylvania at an annual salary of $4,000. The appointment was announced in Harrisburg by Attorney General William A. Schnader. Another Pittsburgher, Joseph A. Langfitt, Jr., a cousin of Attorney George F. P. Langfitt, an aide of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, was named as a member of Schnader's staff at a salary of $3,600.

Prima Donna to Add Two New Songs to Her Repertoire

She said:

"J'aime le jazz, beaucoup—I like it very much."

She confessed that she has wanted to sing jazz all her life, but of course jazz, as heretofore written, has never been suitable for the voice that made the petite French girl a sensation in grand opera.

She qualified her liking, however, to "good jazz" without explaining just what it was that distinguished good jazz from bad jazz.

Gershwin's two new songs will be suitable for a coloratura soprano, but Miss Pons doesn't otherwise know what they are like, or who will write what kind of lyrics. They will be in English, and she plans to add them to her concert repertoire as soon as she can get them rehearsed.

She hopes to prove that jazz can bring something to an operatic voice and vice versa.

She is looking forward especially to the opportunity to sing jazz when next she appears in South America on concert tour for down there, says she, with arms and eye aloft:

Four Given Fines Under Labor Laws

Accused of violating state labor laws by working women overtime, Maurice Munter, of the Sweet Clean Laundry Company; W. J. Ford, of the Original Coffee Shop, 1302 Wylie avenue; Sam Vasil, Packers Restaurant, 2018 Carson street, and W. E. Mischler, Haddon Hall Hotel, Center avenue, were fined last night by Alderman Edward W. Haas, 1811 West Liberty avenue.

Munter was assessed $50 and the others $10.

INTERNATIONAL HERE IN FALL

The Carnegie Institute International Exhibition of Paintings will be resumed this year, it was announced at the Carnegie Institute last night after the fine arts committee of the trustees had approved the plans for the exhibition. The exhibition, the thirty-first international in the history of Carnegie Institute, will run from October 19 to December 10.

The exhibition will consist of about 350 paintings, of which 125 will be from the United States and 225 from Europe, all directly invited by the institute. A jury of award will be made up of three directors of American art museums. Prizes will be $1,500 for first, $1,000 for second and $500 for third. In addition to the institute prizes, the Garden Club of Allegheny County will offer a prize of $300 for the best painting in the exhibition of a garden of flowers.

Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts, will leave for Europe in March to visit artists who will be represented in the International.

Two Truck Drivers Injured in Crashes

Charles W. Wetzel, 39, of 2005 Dartmore avenue, was in South Side Hospital today with injuries suffered late yesterday when he swerved his coal truck in Brownsville road, Baldwin Township, to avoid a collision with an automobile, according to Police Chief J. H. Erbel. The truck crashed through a cable fence and overturned.

When the truck which he was driving near his home skidded and upset, Rudolph Kordick, 21, of 418 North Mathilda street, suffered lacerations and bruises, police said. He was taken to West Penn Hospital.

DARROW TO AID AUTO STRIKERS

DETROIT, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Clarence Darrow, noted attorney and criminologist, today accepted an invitation to help arbitrate the strikes which have paralyzed strategic centers of the automotive industry.

Darrow telegraphed from Chicago that he was willing to represent the strikers in negotiations to end the Briggs Manufacturing Company strike.

The strike committee, it was said, had telegraphed him asking his aid as mediator. He replied to a telegraphed inquiry by the Detroit Times as follows:

"Am willing to represent strikers in arbitration. Could not reach Detroit before Monday."

VATICAN OPENS RADIO STATIONS

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Four years of peace between the Vatican and the government of Italy was celebrated today with the inauguration of the world's first short wave radiotelephone stations as the high point of the program.

The stations are the property of the Vatican and with them Pope Pius XI hopes to give his messages directly to millions throughout the world. One plant is in the Vatican and another at the papal villa at Castel Gandolfo, 20 miles away.

They are the creation of the inventor of the wireless, Guglielmo Marconi. The Pope and Marconi were to converse with the Bishop of Albano, custodian of the papal villa, in the first use of the service.

The Vatican also was celebrating today the eleventh year of the reign of the 75-year-old Pope.

Fifty years of estrangement between the Vatican and Italy ended with the signing of the treaty of conciliation, the concordat, and the financial convention at the Lateran Palace February 11, 1929, by Premier Mussolini and Cardinal Gasparri.

Weather Conditions.

The trough of low pressure, yesterday extending from Manitoba to New Mexico, developed rapidly eastward during the last 24 hours and now extends from the lower lakes to the Middle Atlantic coast, having been accompanied by rains over the southern and snows over the lake region, the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic states. Heavy snow fell over portions of Pennsylvania, averaging eight inches at Harrisburg and Philadelphia. High pressure now overlies the plateau and the southern states. It is colder in the Canadian Northwest, the Northern Rocky Mountains and northern plains and the Upper Mississippi Valley, but over most of the country temperatures are somewhat higher than yesterday.

River Conditions.

The Allegheny pools are frozen over, ice nearly four inches thick. Light ice is running in the Upper Monongahela pools and in the Ohio pools from No. 6 down. There is a gorge in the Allegheny River below Franklin and in the Youghiogheny below West Newton. Stage at Franklin is 5.0 feet; Parkers Landing 3.2; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 13.8; Pittsburgh 12.7; Dam No. 4, 10.4; No. 6, 9.7; No. 10, 11.2, and No. 12, 11.5. The dams are up. The rivers will continue to fall.

CHANGE SUNDAY SHOW FEATURE

Harry Kalmine, regional director of the Warner Theaters, announced today that "He Learned About Women" will not be the feature picture at the downtown Warner Theater benefit show tomorrow for the Jewish Home for Babies and Children. "Handle With Care," with James Dunn and Boots Mallory, has been substituted. It is thought that this picture will have a more popular appeal to a Sunday movie audience. There will also be newsreels, comedies and short subjects.

Considering the fact that this home is backed by an organization numbering many hundreds of women, it is believed that tomorrow's show will be the most successful the Warner management has sponsored, the Sun-Telegraph co-operating.

Food only will be required as tickets—no cash will be accepted. And it is hoped that those who attend will not only be liberal, but will give some thought to the food donated, selecting foods that children would need and enjoy. It is also expected that every person attending will bring the equivalent in food to the regular downtown price of admission to a show of this kind. Children will not be admitted unless accompanied by parents. Tomorrow's Warner show will start at 2 o'clock and run continuously until 11 p. m.

Youth Hurt as Glass Falls From Window

Thomas Deary, 19, of 4536 Gladstone street, suffered lacerations to his stomach early today, police said, as he started to enter the Hibernian Hall, 4721 Second avenue. A window was broken when the door slammed, according to police, showering Deary. He was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

Bandit Pair Robs Hill District Man

John Colwell, of 1520 Wylie avenue, was held up by two Negroes at Fullerton street and Coke way and robbed of $7 last night, he reported to Center Avenue police.

DAVID YOUNG

BOY CROSSING ICE DROWNS

Ten-year-old David Young, of 1328 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, was drowned last night when he fell through the thin ice in Chartiers Creek near Windsgap Avenue Bridge, despite the efforts of his brother Paul, 12, to rescue him.

David and Paul were crossing the frozen creek when David began to slide and fell through the ice. Paul plunged into the hole in an attempt to save his brother and almost lost his life. A youth who left the scene without telling his name rescued Paul, but his efforts to drag the younger boy out were futile.

McKees Rocks firemen were summoned and chopped through the ice. David's unconscious form was taken from the water by Fire Capt. William Krise and taken to Ohio Valley Hospital, where Capt. Krise, physicians and nurses worked more than three hours to resuscitate him. At 9 p. m. he was pronounced dead.

David was the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. V. Young. He and his brother attended Ellsworth School.

FEE EXPLAINED BY ATTORNEY

Replying to an allegation that one of his clients had received, after paying medical expenses, only $721 of a $4,500 settlement he had obtained from an insurance company, Attorney David S. Keilly today produced records that indicated the client, Mrs. Jessie Forsythe, had received $2,225.

Attorney Keilly had been criticized in court by Visiting Judge John H. McCann, of Cambria County, when allegations reflecting on him were made. Mrs. Forsythe's two sons had been injured in an automobile accident and a criminal case resulting from the mishap was being tried when details of a private damage settlement involved were aired.

Explaining the amount paid Mrs. Forsythe, Attorney Keilly said:

"After all medical expenses were deducted she and her husband received the net sum of $2,225. My fee was the usual and customary fee in such cases, 40 per cent, of the amount remaining after all medical expenses were deducted."

Man Drives Auto Through Window

J. D. DuToit, an automobile salesman, drove a car he was demonstrating through the showroom window of the W. J. Dible automobile agency, Penn avenue, near Coal street, Wilkinsburg, yeserday. DuToit explained he was demonstrating the ease with which the car started. It was in gear.

GUY ATTORNEYS BOLSTER ALIBI

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Defense attorneys in the strange murder case of Walter Wanderwell planned today to pile up more testimony that William James Guy, debonaire young adventurer, was 30 miles from the scene when the professional rover was shot to death aboard his yacht here on the night of December 5.

They proposed to call to the stand Mrs. Edward Delarm and Juanita and Betty Delarm, wife and daughters of the aviator-friend of Guy, who yesterday maintained on the stand the accused man was in bed in the Delarm home at Glendale when a mysterious visitor fired the fatal shot into Wanderwell's back.

Guy's counsel said they expected to establish an alibi without placing the 23-year-old Welshman on the stand.

TRIBUTES TO BE PAID LINCOLN IN CHURCHES TOMORROW

PHASES OF LIFE, CHARACTER TO BE TOPICS

All phases of Abraham Lincoln's character, personality and achievements will be discussed in pulpits of all church denominations throughout the Pittsburgh district tomorrow.

He will be discussed as a great Emancipator, a great leader, a great American, a prophet from God, a Christian, a man of faith, a man of the ages, a man of troubles, a man of sorrows.

TO DISCUSS COURAGE

Clergymen will discuss his courage and strength, his religion, his memory, the man himself. At 11 a. m. tomorrow, the Rev. Jacob Simpson Payton, of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach on "The Undiscovered Altar of Lincoln's Dreams," from the text which Lincoln once declared would lead him to unite with the church upon the altars of which he should find it inscribed.

"What Is the Greatness of Abraham Lincoln?" will be the subject of Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson's sermon at the services of the Rodef Shalom Congregation at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

For the eighteenth consecutive year, the Emory Brotherhood Bible Class will observe the Lincoln anniversary by attending the evening service in a body. The Rev. Dr. M. B. Fuller will speak on "Lincoln, the Man Among Men." The class orchestra of 20 pieces under the direction of Prof. J. Ray Nicodemus and a men's chorus under the leadership of W. B. Lawton will furnish music.

SPECIAL SERVICE

The Rev. O. W. Bolton, of Grace Methodist Protestant Church, Sharpsburg, will preach on "Spaciousness for Spirit" at 11 a. m. tomorrow. A special Lincoln Day program will be sponsored by the Leland Bible Class of the church at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow. The pastor will speak on "Lincoln's Unrealized Ambition."

"Lincoln's Religion" will be discussed by the Rev. Dr. Clarence L. Dausherty, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Protestant Church, Bidwell street, North Side, at 11 a. m. tomorrow. At the same hour, the Rev. Samuel Hill will speak on "The Great Emancipator" in the Butler Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Fortieth street.

CARNEGIE WAS NOT SLOW TO ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITY

Home Mortgaged To Get Money for First Investment

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
by BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

Reaching the office early one morning, Carnegie learned that the whole Pennsylvania system was deadlocked. A serious accident had delayed the western express train; the eastward train was slowly creeping from station to station, a signalman on every curve. All along the entire line, in both directions, freight trains were standing on the sidings. Not one could move without telegraphic orders from the superintendent, and that superintendent, Mr. Scott, was nowhere to be found.

Making one of those quick decisions for which he was afterward so famous, Carnegie wrote a sheaf of telegrams instructing the conductors of all the freight trains to resume operation and giving minute directions as to how to proceed, and, boldly signing the messages "Thomas A. Scott," sent them on their way.

"Do you know what that little white-haired Scotch devil of mine did today?"

"No."

"I'm damned if he didn't run every train on the division in my name without the slightest authority."

"And did he do it all right?"

A Quick Thinker

Another incident discloses this same readiness to accept responsibility, as well as another of Carnegie's mental traits—rapidity of thought. On this occasion a bad wreck lying across the tracks was holding up the whole system. Again Mr. Scott was absent, and the office was distracted. Carnegie promptly sent a message to which he signed Mr. Scott's name: "Burn the cars." The plan was an expensive one, but in a brief period the track was clear. Mr. Scott was delighted and adopted the Carnegie procedure as the routine method of meeting such emergencies in the future.

There was also an inexorable quality in Carnegie—a trait which some described as "ruthlessness," but which was rather an insistence, in his business relations on the maintenance of certain principles, and a rigid attention to the duties of time and place. No man ever suffered fools less patiently. It was a general comment, in his days of large affairs, that any man who made a serious mistake did not long survive to repeat the error. This trait was also shown in his early period on the Pennsylvania.

The happy moment came early in 1859, when Mr. Scott became vice president of the Pennsylvania, and, calling Carnegie into his office, asked him: "Do you think you could manage the Western Division?" The young man was a little offended by the question. It seemed to imply that Mr. Scott was not quite sure. Manage the Western Division? "I was at an age when I thought I could manage anything!" said Carnegie. Mr. Scott's question, however, was purely rhetorical, for he handed the job immediately over to his assistant, who held it for the next four years.

Before this promotion had taken place, Carnegie had laid the basis of his fortune. Its beginnings were not the outcome of homely Scotch thrift—the painful saving from day to day usually recommended as the one indispensable road to riches, they were the consequence of the qualities already indicated—quick thinking, keen judgment, the instantaneous appreciation of opportunity, an ever present audacity in taking a chance.

First Investment

His first investment was his purchase, at the age of 20, of 10 shares of Adams Express Company stock. Thomas A. Scott gave him the opportunity and his mother, by mortgaging the Rebecca street house, found the money.

The real beginning was more characteristic. It came one day when Carnegie was riding on a rear car of a passenger train, meditatively watching the converging rails. A stranger carrying a green bag somewhat diffidently approached him. One of the brakemen, he said sitting down at Carnegie's side, had informed him that he was an official of the Pennsylvania Railroad. With that the newcomer drew from his bag a queer looking object, the model of an invention for which he had just obtained a patent. Had Andrew been a railroad man of the conventional type, the first glimpse of this contraption would have started him scurrying. For his new friend was a man daring enough to invent a sleeping car! No idea was quite so odious in railroad circles.

But the model which Mr. Theodore T. Woodruff extracted from his green bag immediately arrested Carnegie's attention. As the inventor proceeded to explain its workings, the young man's eyes fairly danced with eagerness. Nothing remotely resembling this sleeping arrangement had ever been previously seen, for Mr Woodruff had hit upon an entirely new idea. His car, in the daytime, could be used as a regular passenger carriage, and at night time could be deftly changed into sleeping quarters. In his formal patent, indeed, Mr. Woodruff had aptly described his contrivance as a "seat and couch car." The model shown Carnegie contained two seats facing each other which, when the time came for the great transformation, could be reinforced by a connecting board and change into a bed. Above this was another bed, cunningly concealed in the daytime, which could be let down by a chain and hinges; when not used this hidden compartment was to serve as a storage room for bed clothes.

A Great Success

As a result of this interview the Pennsylvania built two of the Woodruff cars and installed them with success. Mr. Woodruff was so grateful to Carnegie that when he organized his company, he offered him a one-eighth interest. The young man accepted immediately, though without the slightest notion as to where he was to obtain the necessary cash. When the first payment on his stock was called—the amount was $217.50—a banker in Altoona was persuaded to advance the money, without security. The public took to the new conveyance as rapturously as Carnegie himself. The Woodruff cars began to appear, in adequate numbers, not only on the Pennsylvania, but on all the most progressive railroads of the time. The innovation, as Andrew at once perceived, was especially in demand in the United States, because of the great distances frequently traveled and the necessity many passengers felt of spending their nights on trains. So successful was the new Woodruff Company that Carnegie had no difficulty in finding money for the additional payments on his stock. He was able to liquidate all installments with the dividends—a scheme of finance that became almost the invariable rule in subsequent enterprises. Thus Andrew Carnegie's first considerable investment was made without the outlay of a dollar of his own. By the time he had reached his twenty-fifth year the annual dividend from this source amounted to about $5,000. The investment was more than a nest-egg; it was the start of the Carnegie fortune.

The Homewood House

Up to that time the Carnegies had lived simply. Their circumstances had improved, but an understandable affection kept them in the old Rebecca street house. This house was necessarily relinquished when, in 1856, Carnegie went to Altoona as assistant to Thomas A. Scott, but when he succeeded to Scott's position the family returned to Pittsburgh, and a new home became necessary. The choice proved a happy one. About eight miles from the city, in the East Liberty valley, a small settlement had developed, called "Homewood," in honor of the stately residence of Judge William Wilkins. Here Carnegie purchased a modest, tawny colored, two-story frame house, embowered in Norway spruce trees, and installed his mother, his brother Tom and himself. The place represented the kind of haven for his mother that Andrew had imagined as a child. Margaret Carnegie's struggles with adversity had reached an end, and in this secluded region she found herself surrounded by country lanes, woods, glens and a running brook.

The population of Homewood comprised only a dozen families, but nearly all appear henceforth in several phases of the story. Next to their rustic cottage lived David A. Stewart, nephew of Thomas A. Scott, afterward a partner in steel, while not far away Thomas N. Miller, one of the orators of the Webster Debating Society, now a rising railroad man, had pitched his tent. John Vandervort, also an early partner and intimate friend, was close at hand.

Squirrel hunting in the densely grown Turtle Creek valley, where now stand the great Westinghouse works; skating on Richmond's pond, a sport at which "Andy" was the acknowledged champion, as he was at dancing; picnics, botanizing, fishing, walking and riding were among the pastimes of the Homewood fellowship.

Social Life

More formal social life centered in the home of Judge Wilkins, quite the "big house" of the region, almost a manorial estate. This landmark, built in the early nineteenth century, was a noble specimen of the classic renaissance that then swept over the United States. It stood far distant from the road, approached through a colonnade of mighty elms—a huge, red brick structure, the entrance being the customary Greek portico, the marble roof supported by fluted Ionic pillars, while the interior was an expanse of halls, drawing rooms and other magnificences not usually met with in a pioneer community. Judge Wilkins and his wife were as stately as their home. The Judge had been a familiar of Andrew Jackson, serving under him as Minister to Russia; his duties as Secretary of War in President Tyler's administration and United States Senator when Henry Clay, who spent many a night in the Wilkins place, was at his zenith, furnished conversational topics in plenty to entrance "Andy" and his friends. Mrs. Wilkins, a daughter of Vice President George M. Dallas, and thus a distant connection of Lord Byron, also entertained the 'Junta' for hours with anecdotes of political life in Washington and in foreign courts.

The pond was near what is now the intersection of Beechwood boulevard and Wilkins avenue, and as a young woman, Mrs. Caroline Richmond, 7945 Hill avenue, lived on the farm.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Many of you heard Branson de Cou, world traveler and lecturer, doing a little bit of radio globe trotting the other afternoon. Privately he told me what handed him his biggest laugh. In his far-flung travels through places where it is taboo to take pictures he has been arrested in Russia; detained in Japan; stopped in Mexico; but it took the Pennsylvania Board of Censors to haul him up for non-censorship of his scenic slides.

Mrs. A. C. Madden, of East Brady, and Mrs. A. Kramer, of West Homestead, have shown a keen interest in those half-dollars of ancient vintage with an "O" mint mark. You'll find that "O," if you're lucky, underneath the eagle close to the edge of the coin.

If we gave orchids like Walter Winchell we certainly would want to send a flock of them to that policeman guarding the children coming from the Lee School, Beechview.

He just about completed his work when a little toddler, about 5 years old, came straggling along, blue with cold, his little coat unbuttoned, and his cap in his hand instead of on his head and protecting his ears. The boy was so miserable that he could hardly walk. The quick eye of the officer took in the situation. In a flash he was at the little fellow's side, had him in his arms, bundled up his coat, warmed his ears, put his cap in place and then—put him down? No, he petted the baby a moment or so, asked him where he lived, and strode off with the youngster in his arms—carried him all the way home, a good two blocks.

Three cheers for Clairton Lodge No 750, I. O. O. F. They've knocked the life out of Old Man Depression. In the last year they took in 34 new members and paid off a note against the lodge—a record not equaled by any of the lodges in the United States, my correspondent informs me.

Clairton also boasts of its "500" devotees. The Buchleitners and the Senks sat down for a few hands at 8 in the evening and before they knew it it was 4 in the morning with Mrs. Senk and her partner, Mr. Buchleitner, 3,870 points ahead. Just another example of the old gag, "C'mon, one more hand."

* * *

Three-year-old Miss Unglaub had a little Boston bull puppy but it didn't come home one night. Now she wants another one because she misses the pup's companionship. Her mother has a pair of ice skates and rink roller skates. Now who has a Boston bull to trade for the skates and the baby's smile.

Aircaster Finds Why Radio Comedians Leave Home —And Never Return

By AIRCASTER

In going through the network archives while searching for a few oddities worthy of tabulation, I have just discovered, among other things, why comics leave home; that it is impossible to form new orchestras, and that the very best a radio announcer can expect from life is his elevation to the role of a stooge.

The comics leave home—and almost never return—for purposes of self-protection. Like prophets, they seldom become big shots in their own territory, but in the cases of F. Chase Taylor, who is no other than Stoopnagle; Bud Hullick, his stooge, and Gordon Graham, one of the Funnyboners, there were added motivations.

Not So Comic

Mr. Graham, for instance, had the (at first) happy and later, unhappy, experience of serving the public of Utica, N. Y., in the dual capacity of columnist and actor. When the managing editor of his newspaper discovered that Graham, who wrote under a non-de-plume, was inditing rave notices about an actor named Gordon Graham, Graham left town.

Mr. Taylor never dreamed of his metamorphosis into the inventive creature now called Stoopnagle until his mind failed. He was perfectly sane when he accepted a job as columnist for a Buffalo newspaper, but the inevitable occurred. He went nerts and left the job and found haven, as most mad people do, in radio.

While all this was going on, Bud Hulick was writing a column in an Asbury Park (N. J.) journal. He wrote a piece one day that made it advisable for him to begin a hasty visit to Niagara Falls or anywhere. So he went to Niagara Falls, and somehow ran into Stoopnagle.

As to Stooges

There was a day when the pinacle of an announcer's success was his graduation to the post of master of ceremonies, but the importation of stagefolk ended that era. Nowadays, the best a microphone butler can hope for is glorification as a stooge. Look at McNamee! And Wallington! And now, look at Dave Ross, the diction medalist, crowned as the foil of J. P. Medbury.

Among other oddities is the act that hardly any bands have come to radio in four years—I mean no newly organized bands—with any success. You might cite the Buddy Rogers outfit, the Roger Wolfe Kahn bunch, and the Russ Columbo tooters. But, as they say in the Kashimiri song, "where are they now." The Whitemans and Lombardos, and the Lopezes, etc., were all doing a nifty business six years ago. Jacques Renard is the only one who made a run of it—and then again, where is he now?

Of course, there's Lennie Hayton—and he's doing a nice job. Maybe he, as an exception, proves the rule.

'Blind Man's Buff' On 5 Stations

The opening chapters of "Blind Man's Buff," an unusual story of romance and mystery by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, starting serially in tomorrow's American Weekly, magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, are presented in dramatic form today on the following schedule:

WCAE, 7 p. m.; KQV, 9:15 p. m.; WWSW, 8 p. m.; WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va., 5:30 p. m., and WMMN, Fairmont, W. Va., 6 p. m.

Kathleen Norris, Floyd Gibbons On Air Tonight

A broadcast of the annual meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, with Senator Arthur Robinson, of Indiana, and Floyd Gibbons, rapid-fire news commentator and war correspondent, listed among the principal speakers, is carried over a nation-wide NBC network including KDKA at 11:30 tonight. Other speakers are to be Mrs. Consuelo De Coe, president of the National Auxiliary, and Admiral Robert E. Coontz, retired, commander-in-chief of the V. F. W.

Mendelssohn's "Hebrides" Overture; a symphony by Louis Gruenberg, and Mozart's Concerto in C Major for Piano and Orchestra with Walter Gieseking as soloist, are highlights of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's concert over NBC-KDKA at 8:15 p. m. Serge Koussevitzky conducts.

A share of the radio spotlight tonight is devoted to youth with a 15-minute talk on "Building Girlhood," by Kathleen Norris listed on WCAE at 6:15, and a discussion of the more serious side of the younger generation by three editors of "Modern Youth" on WJAS at 6.

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

This morning, just in time to get it into my column, I heard of an interesting entertainment in Miami Beach which over so many folks from Pittsburgh attended.

The Victor H. Ehrharts gave the affair, a tea-dance, Wednesday afternoon in the lounge of the Surf Club. Small tables were arranged around the dance floor, and the buffet was placed between the arches of the dining room in front of a bower of palms and other tropical plants. Pink sweet peas and asters with pink roses were the floral decorations.

Among those present were the James H. Hammonds, Mrs. Porter S. Kier, Dr. and Mrs. Edward C. Leslie, the F. Lowry Walls, Miss Mary Belle Walls and Mrs. Marie Tello Phillips Yaegle and Mrs. P. N. Beegle, of Beaver Falls.

News has reached Pittsburgh of the marriage of Mrs. Elizabeth Stoddard Lovejoy, daughter of Maj. Louis E. Stoddard, of New York, and Fraser M. Horn, of New York, son of the John Fraser Horns, of Vandergrift, which took place Thursday.

Married in East

Mr. Horn's father is one of the founders of the town of Vandergrift, and president of the company which laid out the site on which the town was built.

The ceremony took place in the Municipal chapel, New York. Mr. Horn and his bride sailed last night on the Berengaria for Bermuda.

Mr. Horn is a graduate of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.; Yale, 1922, and of Harvard Law School, 1926.

Mrs. Horn was married in 1925 to Winslow M. Lovejoy, captain of the Yale football team in 1924. The marriage ended in divorce in Reno in September, 1930.

And I have just learned of some more tableholders for the Woman's City Club bridge this afternoon in the William Penn Chatterbox.

Reserve Tables

They are Mrs. George E. Tener, Mrs. H. G. Float, Mrs. George E. Emery, Mrs. W. F. Andrews, Mrs. Bernd Stenger, Miss Karen Fladoes, Mrs. Lewis E. Young, Mrs. Mary K. Weir, Mrs. Frederick Way, Mrs. Rachel Wade, Mrs. Homer D. Williams, Mrs. R. E. Withers, Mrs. Edward A. Woods, Mrs. H. S. Wherrett, Mrs. A. L. Vencill, Mrs. C. W. Tuttle, Mrs. W. A. Seifert, Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, Mrs. George J. Stanley, Mrs. E. J. Searles, Mrs. Frances Speer Reed, Miss Florence Leitch.

Voters' Leagues Women to Hold Meetings

The Fourteenth Ward League of Women Voters will meet Monday in the Colonial School. Miss Ruth Fugh will speak on "The Youth Movement Internationally" and Mrs. David Alter on "Geneva Reminiscences," but Daniel E. Morgan, former city manager of Cleveland, will be the chief speaker.

At the same hour the Twenty-seventh Ward League will hold a benefit in All Saints' Episcopal Parish House, McClure avenue, and at the Bellevue League meeting the same day and hour in the Community House, Max Henrici will speak on "Peace on the Western Hemisphere."

Speaking on "Neighbors All," Mrs. L. H. Cretcher will address a meeting of the Twenty-sixth Ward League, Tuesday in the American Legion Hall, Perrysville avenue. Mrs. E. O. Tabor will give folk songs in costume.

Miss Ella Graubart is to speak at the Wilkinsburg League meeting in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel Tuesday on "Laws In Relation to Women."

"Thinking Internationally" has been selected as the subject for the Dormont-Mt. Lebanon League in Dormont New Centry Club Wednesday, when a group of young people will present a tableau, "Three Thousand Miles of Border Line."

Mrs. George E. Campbell, of Dickson avenue, will entertain the meeting of the Ben Avon League Wednesday when Mrs. A. H. Bowman will discuss the city manager plan and Mrs. Davis S. Black will review "Your Money's Worth," by Stuart Chase.

The County Immigration Committee, under Mrs. H. K. Griffin, will make a tour of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Thursday and will hear Sydney Teller, executive director of the Settlement.

At the Forest Hills League meeting Friday in the Municipal Building, the Pitt Debating Team will present the program, debating "Power vs. Ownership."

Foster W. C. T. U. to Hear Address by Minister

The Rev. John Edgar will be guest speaker Monday at the annual social and meeting of the Foster Women's Christian Temperance Union which will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. S. H. Augustine, North Dithridge street. There will also be music and Mrs. W. C. Sansom will read.

Birthday of Lincoln To Be Marked at Home

Department officers of the G. A. R. and the Ladies of the G. A. R. and officers of the Daughters of Veterans will be present Monday at the Lincoln's Birthday celebration in the Ladies of the G. A. R. Home, Hawkins Station.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Tracy Mark 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Tracy, of Woodward avenue, McKees Rocks, are celebrating their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

Mrs. W. A. Dunlap and Mrs. John Lloyd, who are sisters, are confused constantly by their friends.

One day Mrs. Dunlap arrived at a department store where she was to meet her sister, Mrs. Lloyd. She spoke to the doorman, then went to do a bit of shopping before her appointment with her sister.

Then she asked the doorman if he had seen Mrs. Lloyd. He told her Mrs. Lloyd had arrived some time ago. Just then who should arrive but Mrs. Lloyd. And Mrs. Dunlap discovered she had been waiting for herself and she was the one the doorman had seen entering the store.

Mrs. Johanna K. Hallman, the distinguished Pittsburgh woman painter, started her art studies at the age of 21. Her father, the late Joseph R. Woodwell, was her teacher.

Mrs. Hallman is busy arranging an exhibit of her father's work, to open Thursday at the Carnegie Institute.

Florence Newcomer, the Pittsburgh artist, is in Maryville, Tenn., doing some special decorative work for Mrs. John Walker's new home there, "Morningside." Later Miss Newcomer will go to Daytona, Fla., to visit Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard at her winter home, "Onadune."

Even Pittsburgh men have heard of the attractive bridge benefit the Woman's City Club is giving this afternoon in the William Penn's Chatterbox.

One member wanted to know if men were admitted, for she knew of a group who wanted to attend. The answer was: "Yes."

West Penn Alumnae Card Party February 24

Members of the Alumnae Association of the West Penn Hospital have completed arrangements for a benefit card party to be held in the nurses' home of the West Penn Hospital February 24. Invitations have been issued to friends of members and the hospital to raise funds for an important activity of the Association.

Society Hears Concert By Symphony Orchestra

One of the most enthusiastic audiences a symphony has ever had in Syria Mosque applauded and applauded and then applauded some more the artistry of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, which gave a concert last night, and will give one this afternoon and tonight.

In one of the boxes were Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, one of Pittsburgh's most faithful concert-goers, Mrs. A. S. P. Keister and her little daughter, Phyllis, who is studying the harp.

Mrs. Allderdice wore a flame red taffeta brief jacket over her black gown. Another box-holder was Mrs. John W. Lawrence in black satin with a cape of the material. Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson was in red bagheera.

Minister Addresses Carnegie Club Women

What he wants to see when he goes to the Holy Land was detailed to the Woman's Club of Carnegie by the Rev. L. O. Burry when he addressed yesterday's meeting. Mrs. C. W. Heinz added vocal solos to the program, George Richards accompanying her; Mrs. H. H. Lee and Miss Mary Harris had papers on Benjamin Franklin and Western Pennsylvania's colonial homes, and Billie Treat gave a reading. Incidentally it was recalled that the old stone manse in South Park was owned by an ancestor of Mrs. L. B. Worley, a past president of the club.

The club contributed to the fund for the daily lunches which Father Dominico supervises for 250 public and parochial school children.

Unitarian Alliance To Be Shown Eurythmics

Its annual supper and card party will be held by Loyalty Chapter, No. 343, O. E. S., on Tuesday in Malta Hall, North Side. Supper will be served from 5:30 p. m. to 7 p. m.

THE OPEN-TOP EVENING DRESS PROVIDES RARE DISTINCTION

IT IS SAID to be practically impossible to find a new fashion. In the natural course of events, every so-called new style which is launched is finally classed as a new version of some fashion of a previous decade—or even a previous century. However, to date, there is one new style that fashion hasn't yet been able to classify—the open-top evening dress.

IT IS A strange fashion, quite unfamiliar—to the modern eye, at least—but it gives such a distinctly new line to the figure that it has been immediately taken up by women, and is already one of the new successes.

* * *

AS THE sketch shows, it gives a line which concentrates all attention to the neckline of the dress. Wherever the open fullness is placed—at the back, or at the sides of the front—the effect seems to be that the entire dress is made for the purpose of framing the upper part of the body, the head, shoulders and arms.

THE DRESSMAKER who designed this dress chose for the fabric a soft green velvet, a material especially suited to the softly draping folds which edge the decolletage. When viewed in profile, the extending folds at the back give the illusion of a huge bow.

* * *

THE JEWELRY in the sketch is interesting for the way it combines metallic colors. Ring, bracelet and necklace are all made of interwined bands of gold copper and pewter. The necklace ornament is a round mirror in cabuchon cut, bordered with silver.

Masefield First British Poet Laureate to Make U. S. Lecture Tour

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

John Masefield, who comes to the Twentieth Century Club on Monday morning to talk on "Poetry," is the first English poet laureate to visit America for the specific purpose of speaking. The office of poet laureate in which Mr. Masefield has succeeded such distinguished poets as Dryden, Wordsworth and Tennyson, was conferred on him by the Labor government.

The office is received from the British crown by letters patent. No ceremony attends the appointment, but the appointee is expected to attend a levee in court dress. The duties of poet laureate formerly consisted of composing an ode on the sovereign's birthday, on the occasion of the wedding of a member of the royal family or when there was a new arrival in the royal family. Indeed, all important occasions and national victories were to be sung of by him, but this is no longer required. The poet laureate now may write whatever and whenever he chooses and for this he receives a small remuneration.

Spencer was the court poet of Queen Elizabeth and received a pension of 50 pounds for having written "The Faerie Queene." There was no formal poet laureate until 1630 when the title was conferred upon Ben Jonson by James I. His successor, Sir William Davenant, received no title, but was given a pension of 100 pounds a year. The first to receive the title by letters patent was John Dryden in 1670. Elizabeth Barrett Browning was suggested as a successor of Wordsworth, but tradition decreed that the office must be held by a man and it was given to Tennyson, who held it for 42 years.

Rosslyn Farms Club Collects Books For Library

Members of the Rosslyn Farms Woman's Club are collecting books for a proposed circulating library in a nearby mill town where there are no reading facilities save a limited school library. The club is also conducting a series of bridge benefits to raise a scholarship fund which will be loaned without interest. The series of four dances sponsored by the women for the young people in the community will be held next Friday evening.

New Kensington Women To Give Benefit Tea

A Washington tea will be held February 22 by the New Kensington Woman's Club as a benefit for the public library which was founded and is maintained by the Junior Club. An open meeting of the Senior Club is scheduled for February 20 to which the public is invited for discussion of the school question.

Eliminate Waste, Dr. Gilbreth Advises

Speaking yesterday to the Friday Morning Club in Carnegie Music Hall, Dr. Lillian Gilbreth said this is a time to look facts in the face and act on facts. Elimination of waste, particularly in the federal government, was stressed and during the forum hour, Dr. Gilbreth deplored the waste of food at banquets and suggested that service be from platters instead of on plates, so that what was left might be used.

Dr. Gilbreth thinks women are not over organized—not for the present stage of evolution—and says they have a tremendous responsibility in their organizations. As individuals they need to feel that life is challenging, interesting and worth while; they must keep physically adequate, mentally alert and emotionally serene. Otherwise they can not think clearly and without clear thinking there cannot be right action.

Girls Meeting at 'Y.W. For Week-end Session

About 200 business girls from Western Pennsylvania are meeting for a week-end conference at Central Branch Y. W. C. A. today and tomorrow. During the afternoon, demonstrations and displays of all sorts of publicity, handicrafts and music will be available. Tea will be served at 4 o'clock.

At the banquet this evening Miss Helen Crawley, Y. W. C. A. metropolitan industrial secretary, will be the principal speaker, introducing the conference theme "Living Through a Crisis and Building for Tomorrow."

Wives Sometimes to Blame For Men's Unfaithfulness

Unfaithfulness—there's an ugly word.

Many a home has been smashed, many a heart has been broken, over that word. In the marriage creed, it is the one unforgivable sin. And yet—

Is there only one form of unfaithfulness—the physical form?

Isn't a nagging, suspicious wife often as unfaithful to the marriage vows as a philandering husband?

And if the husband strays, isn't the wife also to blame, nine times out of ten?

Hard questions for a wife to face. Most wives wouldn't face them, or would deny them indignantly. Yet, in her most terrible hours, when she faced her faithless husband, "Thirty-Five" found the courage to meet them and the generosity to admit them.

HAD QUIET TALK

What happened? Did she save her home; regain her husband's love, restore her own faith and happiness? Read the answer for yourself—one of the bravest and most beautiful letters that has ever come to this column.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I wonder if you can publish one more letter to Lora, who asked about forgiving her wayward husband? I wish you would print this, if you can spare the space, because she might profit by knowing how another woman handled that situation.

I had been married eight years when I quite accidentally ran onto the fact that my husband had had not one, but several, affairs during the years we'd been married. One had gone too far, and he couldn't drop it when he wanted to. This was when it was all brought to my attention. I'll admit it was the hardest thing I ever faced, or want to face again.

However, when it came to a showdown, I didn't try any dramatic scenes. I asked him to sit down and talk to me. He had no idea that I knew anything until I began quietly to discuss it, and to ask him what we were going to do. Then he told me everything.

ADMITTED FAILINGS

If you think I was calm and quiet inside, while our talk was going on, you're badly mistaken.

However, when we had spent hours in discussion; when he had showed me where I had failed to hold him, and I had showed him where he had failed in other ways; and when we had both admitted we were ready to admit our failings and start over, we promised, as Mrs. J. R. did, never to mention the episode again.

When I say I admitted I had been wrong I don't mean morally. But oh, Lora, there are so many other things beside unfaithfulness that a woman can do to lose the man she loves, if she isn't everlastingly alert! It may not be fair, but it is true. After all, if you love him as I do my husband—believe it or not—you can forget, for time is a great old healer.

And so I hope with all my heart that you take your husband back, for the sake of the happiness of both of you. It has been five years now since I had to make up my mind whether I could forgive or not, and it has paid. My husband tells me now that it is like the words of the old song, "I Fell in Love With My Wife;" and I am sure now that I am first in his affection, just as you will be.

NOT MENTIONED AGAIN

On the other hand, there is this to remember—if you can't keep from bringing up things from the past; if you can't refrain from throwing things up to people when you are angry; in other words, if you can't bury the hatchet, both of you, and leave it buried, then you can't make a success of starting over.

My husband and I both have fiery tempers, and we argue and spat now and then. Who doesn't? But not once in the five years since we made up can either of us say "You broke your vow." For neither of us has mentioned the old trouble, since the night we sat up all night, talking and reasoning and crying—and ending up in each other's arms.

Our love is richer for the test it went through, and for my learning of some of my own faults. So give him his chance, won't you? After all, if he didn't love you, and hadn't learned his lesson, he wouldn't have asked to come back.

So talk it over. Don't be too easy, but you can be both sweet and firm if you try. And above all, dear, do try to understand that men do have something in them that lots of women don't understand, and that if you are patient, things will work out.

And remember to really forgive. Don't let Old Man Temper spoil things, some day, by digging up something that is dead and gone. Good luck to you—and let us know how you come out. THIRTY-FIVE.

'BY URGENT REQUEST!'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

They got, at last, too high, the group of letters, marked by your artist friend—"The Dear Infants"—; and so to the winds with adult things for the nonce. They got on my mind. They invaded my dreams, where I saw huge paper-dolls towering teeteringly over me, dancing limply with waverings legs up and down my bed-foot. At the movie-ticket-window I slid in my money and said to a transfixed silver-blonde, "PAPER-DOLLS PLEASE!" Dozens of solemn and accusing little rounded faces, blackette, brownette, golden, and russet haired, stood between my eyes and the landscape, wherever I looked. Little-girl names pursued me, calling in and out of elevators, paddle-wheel doors, down the village street, "Janet, Shirley, Rosamond, Susan, Winifred, Catherine, Audrey—will you make a paper-doll?" For months this has gone on, with patient little ghosts of girls standing about, waiting, KIND little ghosts, too, for they never said anything reproachful, or anything but complimentary and sweet to the lady who had neglected them. It has gotten too much for the lady—so she has buckled down and made "the Doll."

It seems that "Jill," the last and only doll I made for my good children, is all worn out. No wonder! A lady made of newspaper, thin as a thing can be, bent to sit, kneel, and what not, to suit her little mistress.

So here is "Gloriette."

Go along Romance, and sit ye in the hammock in the moonlight. Wait in the outer office, Sir Love, Esq. And the other adult affairs that trouble and interest must wait while the artist, a little shamefacedly, makes a paper-doll!

This is for most especially "Audrey W.," of Milwaukee.

And generally for all the rest of the "Dear Infants."

NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

German Measles Known as A Disease of Spring

Dr. Copeland

Of all the contagious diseases of childhood, "rubella," or "German measles," is the one least feared. Within recent years there has been a slight increase in this ailment.

It is always most prevalent from January to June. On this account it is often referred to as a "spring disease."

The germ causing German measles has never been discovered. But it is probable the secretions of the nose and throat carry the agent of infection. Though not as contagious as measles, it quickly spreads from one child to another.

The disease is more prevalent in school children between the ages of 6 and 15 years. German measles is exceedingly rare in infants and adults. During the war it was occasionally encountered among soldiers living in unhygienic and crowded camps.

There are no dependable early symptoms in this disease. The child goes to bed perfectly well and awakens in the morning, having his face peppered with a red rash. It first appears behind the ears, on the scalp and on the face.

The rash is particularly prominent around the mouth. It spreads rapidly and soon covers the neck, chest and legs. It disappears almost as quickly as it appears.

The rash of German measles is light pink in color. When fresh, it is much lighter than the fully developed rash of scarlet fever or measles. The face looks puffy and the eyes are watery. Unlike measles, the child has no mouth or throat symptoms or painful eyes.

The causative germ of German measles is not known. On this account it is difficult to tell it from other contagious or "catching" diseases. But it is always well for the mother to isolate a child having a rash.

If the rash disappears within 24 hours and the child does not appear ill, you can assume the affliction really is German measles. But if the rash persists and the child has fever and is restless, call your doctor. He will decide whether the trouble is measles or scarlet fever.

At all times great care must be taken to guard the baby from the germs of contagious diseases. It is a very easy matter to pass on to a young child the germs of measles, scarlet fever or any other of the contagious diseases.

Answers to Health Queries

R. P. B. Q.—How can I get rid of pimples?

A.—Diet and elimination are important in the correction of this disorder. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

M. W. Q.—My little boy of three and a half has hard little lumps and swollen glands in his neck. He is apparently well otherwise. He had scarletina about a month ago and this trouble seems to persist. What would you advise?

A.—Have his tonsils examined—they should be removed, if diseased.

The Toy Quilt -:- Made of Bias Tape and Applique

This is the complete picture of the toy quilt which will be printed in the Sun-Telegraph.

The toy quilt consists of 12 toy blocks, 20 Christmas tree blocks and one strip the size of three blocks in which the child's name may be appliqued with bias tape.

Suggested colors:

Background, white.

Christmas trees, also bias tape for binding edge of quilt and for covering seams; soft jade green.

Save this picture for a guide until all of the blocks it contains have been printed in this paper. The first individual block, that of the Christmas tree, will appear next Saturday.

Household Hints

When cooking sausages roll them in flour and they will not burst during the cooking.

When sewing on snaps on garments use the button hole stitch and the snap will stay in place longer than if the regular sewing stitch is used.

To soften shoes or boots which have become hardened due to water, rub with kerosene.

To prevent woolen garments from shrinking when laundered, wash in lukewarm water and rinse in the water of the same temperature.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Gets a Message From Strange Chinese

I do not know yet how I managed to stand erect at the telephone and make answer coherently to the Chinese voice that asked "This Missee Graham?" This long-distance call from Newark, in the face of the fact that nobody outside the immediate family circles of the kidnaped girls knew that I was in Sackettsville, could mean only one thing. There must be some connection between the men who had the girls in their power and the Chinese who had so long terrorized us.

With all the will power I had, I forced my voice to perfunctory courtesy.

"Yes, I am Mrs. Graham. What is it?"

"You no talk any more now. Only say 'yes, no' when I talk. You know where tearoom is on side mountain Schooley?"

"Yes." With part of my brain I was following his directions. With the other I was compelling my memory to remember inflections, mannerisms, everything I could gather about this mysterious voice.

"You can go place far now?"

"Yes."

"Then just one hour from now, no more, no less, you take car, go stlaight that tea room. You go in, buy tea, something to eat. Then you look alound walls at things she sell; say you want buy plesent for flend. Bimeby, you take down little two stick candles liding horse on mantel, say you like it, want candles too. No let lady lap up. You say you in hurry. You go much hurry back hotel, look undeh candles, do what paper say."

HER OWN PROBLEM

There was a sort of low, worthless chuckle at the end of this speech, then the receiver clicked and I was left standing, my hand clutching my own receiver, too dazed to replace it, too terror-stricken almost to breathe.

"One hour from now, no more, no less." The direction rang in my ears, as I looked at my wrist watch and made a mental calculation. Giving myself plenty of time, I would need no more than 20 minutes to drive up to the mountain glen tea room, famed among a succession of Whitney Hall classes for its chicken and waffles and its fruit conserves.

One thing was very plain to me. It was my problem alone! There was no one at hand in whom I could confide. Our men would not be back, and Lillian was so tied up by Helena's collapse that I could not call upon her.

Mary? I was sorely tempted to find my husband's winsome niece and tell her of this newest terrifying development in our awful experience of the last few days, but my conscience conquered my inclination. Mary was too young, too inexperienced to be able to give me any counsel or aid in the problem. I must face it alone!

A DREADED TASK

Of course, there had been nothing definite as yet to connect this mysterious summons to the mountain glen tea room with the kidnaping of Marion and Carolyn. But I was sure that there was a link, and a strong one, between the two. Yet Lee Chow, upon whose sapience we had depended in so many crises, had assured us that the Chinese menace no longer existed for us.

Acting upon the theory of Mary, Queen of Scots, I bathed and dressed in the more attractive of the two gowns I had with me.

Inexorably, however, the hands of my wrist watch raced forward to the moment when I must start. With the realization that I must leave some word behind, so that they could get hold of me in an emergency, I went down the hall to Mary's room and told her that I was going to run over to the glen tea room for some waffles and tea.

"I can think of nothing nicer," Mary said. "May I come, too?"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The fashionable coiffure is neat, sleek and beautifully modeled. The important part of its construction is the tapering at the back which permits a flattened undulation that fits the head snugly, does away with the brush-like effect which comes when the hair is sheared in a straight line.

When there is softness of tissue on the lower part of the face, wring a piece of gauze out of iced witchhazel, bind on chin and cheeks, hold in place with a dry towel pinned together on the crown of the head. Or use a chin strap. The compress is to remain on over night. Next morning rub with ice.

Be a Mrs. Walker. Get out every day. Nothing like a brisk scamper to keep the figure young, to inspire complexion and lips to take on a good color. Walk briskly, at an easy gait, until the flesh is warm and glowing.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Unusual Play

Exactly how the contract was reached in the bidding I cannot determine, but the other day, at Crockford's Club in New York, two of the many fine players who meet there reached a contract of six hearts on the North and South hands below, with South, of course, as the declarer.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ 7642 ♡ QJ7 ◇ KQJ ♣ K84 | |
| | ♠ 3 ♡ AK1098 ◇ A1098 ♣ A72 | |

The bidding must have been strongly seasoned with optimism, perhaps because of the ending of an old year, which had not proved too kind to most, and the inauguration of a new one, from which better things were expected.

The play of the hand was both interesting and unusual. West opened the King of spades, which held the first trick. He then continued with the Knave, which was ruffed in the closed hand with the 8-spot. Now the 9 of hearts was led and overtaken with the Queen in Dummy. The third round of spades was then led from Dummy, and trumped with the Ace in the closed hand. Dummy was re-entered by the lead of the 8 of diamonds to permit the lead of the last spade, which was ruffed with the King. Now the Declarer led his last heart, and overtook it with the Knave in Dummy. The third round of hearts permitted him to discard a club from his own hand. Three more rounds of diamonds and two of clubs permitted the fulfillment of the Slam contract.

By the method he adopted for playing this hand, South had increased the trick-taking power of his cards 1 trick, as on the last trump in Dummy he was thus enabled to discard a loser from his own hand, for which he could otherwise have found no place. The play appears unusual, but actually this problem of making the most of the cards recurs frequently in one form or another. It is not always the wise thing to draw the adverse trumps at once, and certainly, in this case, had South decided upon this procedure, he must inevitably have lost his contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Dealer opens with one heart and Second Hand passes. What should Third Hand respond with the following holding?

♠ 5 ♡ Q7532 ◇ K643 ♣ AJ6

Answer: Three hearts. This bid is a strong invitation to partner to make some further bid if holding any values in addition to those shown by the Opening bid. A Raise to four hearts should not be given, because a triple Raise infers from 2½ to 3 plus honor-tricks in accordance with the Culbertson System of 1933.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Sunday Evening Supper

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am having some friends in for a Sunday night supper, and I am planning to have deviled crabs made in baking shells.

1—Can these be served with the rest of the supper without making it a separate course? And how can I do this, if it is proper?

2—Should I serve cold meat, or would you suggest a salad of some kind along with the crab meat?

3—Is it all right to have a casserole dish of some kind, in place of potatoes? R.

1—These deviled crabs, made in baking shells, are an excellent item for your Sunday evening supper, and if the baking shells are of the usual size they may be placed on the supper plate, with the other items of that course.

2—A salad would be better than the cold meats, I think.

3—Yes, and much better for a supper party.

Eating Fish

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct way to use the fork and knife when eating fish? The question came up at a dinner table tonight and no one was positive, so we decided to consult you. J.

For the fish course, either a fork alone, or a knife and fork of medium size, or a special fish knife and fork, are placed. We use the silver pieces exactly as we do silver pieces for any other course.

If you eat in the fork-shifting fashion, you will, after you have cleared a mouthful of fish, put down your knife, and transfer your fork to your right hand, conveying the fish to your mouth with the fork in the right hand. But, if you use the so-called "European" manner of eating, you will retain the knife in the right hand, and will convey the mouthful of fish to the mouth with the fork in the left hand.

STOCKS DRIFT IRREGULARLY LOWER

The cut in wholesale cigaret prices by American Tobacco had been discounted in advance, and American B as well as Liggett & Myers B rallied fractionally in the first half hour. Reynolds B, however, sagged a fraction. Other slightly firm issues were American Telephone and General Foods, and United States Steel was steady.

Du Pont, however, sagged about a point, and issues off ½ or so included Consolidated Gas, Corn Products, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Drug, Sears, Roebuck, National Biscuit and others.

The long-expected further reduction in cigaret prices appeared, with the announcement that American Tobacco had reduced its popular brand from $6 to $5.50 per thousand, wholesale. Ligget and Myers, R. J. Reynolds, and Lorillard were expected to fall in line. Tobacco stocks had been under pressure for some time in expectation of this reduction, the second this year. As a matter of fact, it was less severe than expected in some quarters.

Week-end trade reports stressed the effect of storms and severe weather over much of the country. The effect of cold alone was described as stimulating to several lines, notably sales of wearing apparel and the movement of coal, but heavy snowfall had in many areas interfered with retail trade, tending to offset the stimulus of lower temperatures.

Announcement of the formation of the Realty Stabilization Corporation to aid, through co-operation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the refinancing of some $700,000,000 guaranteed New York real estate mortgages falling due this year, was described in banking quarters as a big step forward in dealing with the year's important problems in the field of finance. Guaranteed mortgages on New York property have been sold throughout the country.

NATION'S GOLD STOCKS GAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—The country's gold stocks had a net gain of $1,649,600 yesterday. A reduction through an increase of $967,400 in foreign earmarkings was more than offset by imports of $967,500 from Chile, $773,-800 from England and $876,000 from China, the latter shipment being received at San Francisco.

Announcement that the Bank of England had bought $14,582,-000 of gold at par of exchange led to the assumption here that this represented most of the $15,-999,900 in gold placed under foreign earmark here Thursday. If so, this was the fourth recent purchase of gold by the British bank, making an aggregate of about $50,000,000 acquired since early January. Thus the bank has recovered all but some $45,-000,000 of the $95,500,000 December debt payment to the United States.

COTTON PRICES DIP AGAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Cotton futures opened steady, 2 to 5 points lower under southern selling and lower Liverpool cables, but contracts were well taken by the trade. March, 6.01c; May, 6.16c; July, 6.29c; October, 6.48c; December, 6.60c; January, 6.64c.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 11.—Cotton—Receipts, 17,000 bales, including 16,900 American; spot in fair demand; prices 8 points lower. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.71; good middling, 5.41; strict middling, 5.11; middling, 5.01; strict low middling, 4.86; low middling, 4.71; strict good ordinary, 4.52; good ordinary, 4.21. Futures closed quiet: March, 5.78; May, 4.80; July, 4.83; October, 4.88; December, 4.91; January, 4.93.

Tire Shipments Gain; Output Off

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Shipments of pneumatic casings in December totaled 1,818,700 units, compared with 1,711,298 in November, and 2,781,295 in December, 1931, according to Rubber Manufacturers' Association. Production in December amounted to 1,982,681 units, compared with 2,303,545 in November, and 2,643,-221 in December, 1931.

Pneumatic casings in hands of manufacturers on December 31, 1932, totaled 7,644,359 units, as against 7,454,443 in November, and 7,774,720 in December, 1931.

Smelters Withdraws From Export Group

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Union Oil Company of California reports for the year ended December 31, 1932, net profit of $3,211,084 after all charges, including depreciation and taxes, equal to 73 cents a share on 4,386,070 shares outstanding for the year. This compares with net profit of $3,054,913, or 70 cents a share, for 1931, before inventory adjustments amounting to $7,210,062.

Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad reports for the year 1932 net income of $1,367,882 after taxes and charges, equal to $1.58 a share on 863,654 shares, compared with net of $3,072,681 in 1931, or $3.55 a share.

American Express Company, including American Express Company, Inc., reports for the year ended December 31, 1932, net income of $1,056,802 after expenses, taxes etc., equal to $6.04 a share on 180,000 shares, as against $1,100,942 or $6.12 a share in 1931.

ERIE TO PAY BOND BONUS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11. — Drexel & Co., of Philadelphia, and White Weld & Co., of New York, have underwritten an extension of an issue of $4,616,000 New York and Erie Railroad Company third mortgage 4½ per cent bonds extended to March 1, 1933. The Erie Railroad Company, successor to the New York and Erie, offers to extend the bonds to March 1, 1938, at 4½ per cent interest. Holders are asked to deposit bonds with March 1, 1933, coupons detached with the bankers on or before February 28, 1933.

The Erie Railroad has agreed to make a cash payment to holders on bonds deposited in the sum of $53.66 for each $1,000 principal amount of bonds. Deducting this cash payment makes a net cost of extended bonds equivalent to $946.34, making the yield of the extended bonds 5.75 per cent on March 1, 1933, or at any time thereto. The bankers will buy at principal amount and accrued interest the bonds of holders who do not care to avail themselves of the extension privilege.

Less Cottonseed Reported Crushed

NATION FACES FARM PRICE PROBLEM

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—With farmers pauperized by prevailing low prices, the American economic mechanism is like an eight-cylinder engine with two out of commission.

This diagnosis of the nature of the disequilibrium is coming to be accepted to an increasing extent in influential quarters. It would be heartening if the business and financial leaders would take a part in drafting remedies, instead of leaving the solution of the problem go by default to interested groups, such as the farm organization.

Mr. Rukeyser

In explaining why business and employment are still greatly subnormal, Charles S. McCain, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, recently pointed out:

"The trouble is in the derangement of our industry, due to the fact that our great export industries, and especially agriculture, are prostrate, receiving such low prices for their products that they can not buy manufactured goods, and that the manufacturers consequently are working at a low level . . . It is a problem of getting our industrial life into balance again, so that producers of one kind of goods may make markets for the producers of other kinds of goods. Given this, men will be willing to borrow again and banks eager to lend again because the basis of credit will be restored in the actual movement of goods at fair prices."

RECOVERY SIGNS

Many of those who accept this diagnosis believe that the remedy lies in preparing a setup whereby the home market primarily will be made to support agriculture. The domestic allotment plan, toward which President-elect Roosevelt has been sympathetic, and out and out price fixing, such as Senator-elect McAdoo, of California, has proposed, are among the suggested means of thus achieving economic balance.

The continuance of the General Motors dividend was doubtless helped by the better feeling engendered among the directors by the fact that in January the corporation sales showed the largest spurt in nearly two years. That report, plus the announcement that clearings of New York City banks had shown their first improvement in 31 months, constituted straws indicating that a basis for economic recovery is being established. The recurrent theme in Wall street is that business will go forward unless politics upsets the apple cart. As a matter of fact, politics may prove a constructive influence, especially if it bolsters up deficient purchasing power, particularly among the farmers and the unemployed in the cities.

'Frisco Not Paying March 1 Interest

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The New York Stock Exchange has received notice that interest due March 1, 1933, on St. Louis and San Francisco Railway Company consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent bonds series A, 1978, will not be paid on that date. The bonds are to be dealt in flat.

Oklahoma Raises Crude Allowable

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 11.—The Oklahoma State Corporation Commission has issued an order increasing allowable oil production from the Oklahoma City field to 120,465 barrels daily from 93,465 barrels, retroactive to February 1.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—A substantial improvement appeared in the report of bank clearings for the week ended Wednesday, the total exceeding by that of a year ago for the first time in several years. While the increase was mainly at New York City, some outside centers also showed a gain. Clearings for all leading cities in the United States, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., of $4,717,171,000 was 2.6 per cent larger than that of last year.

Clearings this week are larger by $475,935,000 than those of the preceding week, whereas a year ago there was a decline of $894,111,000 for the comparative week. The increase at Philadelphia is considerably larger than it has been heretofore, and there was a gain this week at New Orleans as well. At nearly every city where a decline has been shown heretofore the loss is now for a nominal amount only.

January Motor Output Tops Last Year

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced that January production by its members was 5 per cent above January, 1932, the first comparative rise since August, 1931. Output of 115,915 cars and trucks was 38 per cent above December.

STEEL OUTPUT IN SEASONAL UPTREND

By B. E. V. LUTY

Production of steel ingots increased 19.1 per cent from December to January. The increase was of usual seasonal proportions and furnished encouragement to those who doubted whether there would be any material increase so early in the year.

Production in January was at 17.78 per cent of capacity, against 15.02 per cent in December, 19.06 per cent in October, the high month since last May, and 14.26 per cent in August, the low month in the whole recession.

Production in the last two weeks has been steady at about 19 per cent, some increases in demand being offset by curtailment of production due to stoppage of operations by the Ford Motor Company on account of the Briggs strike.

The January decrease of 69,496 tons in unfilled obligations of the Steel Corporation is attributed chiefly to shipments of rails and fabricated structural steel against old obligations, not offset by fresh bookings in these lines. The major part of the month's shipments was against orders received during the month. In the old days unfilled obligations underwent large increases in December and January due to buying for forward delivery, a practice which gradually waned and then almost entirely disappeared.

NO GENERAL INCREASE

Steel production is now at about one-fourth above the December rate, yet there are no outstanding cases of increased buying, there being merely a multiplication of miscellaneous small orders in addition to there being heavier operation at tin plate mills on specifications against the new contracts for the season now opened.

Such increase as has occurred in steel demand is regarded as being purely of seasonal character, not reflecting any improvement in general business conditions. The increase of last September and October was partly seasonal and partly general. It is still felt that the beginning of emergence from depression occurred at that time, but in so mild a manner as to be only barely discernible.

For a couple months more further improvement of strictly seasonal character is to be expected according to precedents. There remains to develop improvement of more general character, by way of the large consuming lines beginning to grow active. The automobile industry is between periods, having largely supplied dealers with samples and awaiting the time for buying by the public.

PRICES FIRM UP

Since the first of the year railroads have released 30,000 to 40,000 tons of rails against old orders, and inquiries for the coming season are expected within 30 days, while a fair amount of track material is being taken. Other railroad activity affecting steel is not expected before about the middle of the year.

Prospects of fabricated structural steel are indefinite.

The finished steel price situation has grown more complicated, for recently there was question as to price stability in certain lines while now advances in two products are in the air. Several wire interests have definitely adopted advanced prices on nails and barb wire, quoting nails at $1.85 and barb wire at 2.35c. In the sheet trade there is a strong trend towards rigidly quoting prices slightly higher than those going recently following the large declines since the first of the year. Bars, shapes and plates are regarded as firmer than a month ago.

The scrap market shows no change in actual prices, but the tone is visibly stronger by reason of no distress material appearing despite the very small absorption by consumers for weeks past.

Chesapeake Traffic Higher in January

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad reported a gain of four per cent in freight traffic for January over the same month in 1932—101,326 cars against 97,354. The road also reported it ended 1932 with working capital of $5,859,699, compared with $4,921,831 at the close of 1931.

COTTON CLOTH EXPORTS UP

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Per capita consumption of cotton textiles in 1932 dropped to 48.8 square yards from 54.88 in the previous year and the peak of 71.71 in 1923, a 10-year summary of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York discloses.

More than 884,000 spindles were scrapped by the cotton textile industry during the year, bringing the total dismantled since 1923 the high record year, to about 6,500,000 units. Spindles in place at the beginning of 1933 totaled 31,442,174, according to the summary. Spindles active at any time during the year ended July 31, 1932, totaled 27,271,938 compared with $28,979,646 in the previous year.

Production in square yards amounted to 6,445,342,000 in 1932, compared with 7,140,653,000 in 1931 and 8,980,415,000 in 1927, the peak year. The summary shows that exports increased slightly last year to 375,446,000 square yards from 366,959,000 in the previous period. The high level in exports was established in 1927 with 565,021,000 square yards.

Reshipped Wheat Question Muddled

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Customs authorities of the United Kingdom who several days ago refused the 6 cents Empire preference to a shipment of Canadian wheat by way of Buffalo and New York, said today the ruling was not "absolutely final."

This announcement throws open once more the whole question, of tremendous importance to Canadian wheat shipping interests, as to whether Canadian wheat shipped by way of the United States is eligible for the preference.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

The Love Letters of W. W.

MRS. FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT, Warm Springs, Ga. My Dear Mrs. Roosevelt: I am sorry, really, to learn that you are thinking of giving up your radio talks because some rich New York newspapers thought you should. I don't agree with the newspapers that inferred a President's mate should be an ornament instead of a woman.

Seems to me that these papers overlooked the fact that you turn over your entire radio wages, a considerable sum, to charity, and that much of that money goes to buy poor children milk. You see, Mrs. Roosevelt, the rich owners of those papers don't need milk—and so they wouldn't know what it means to need it and not be able to get it. I understand that your husband won't be opposed to your work if he finds that the people want you on the air. So I thought you'd like it if I asked them "how about Mrs. Roosevelt continuing on the radio—even after March 4?" Whatever mail I get in response to that query I'll turn over to you—so you can show it to your husband—and to the rich papers that think "Hunger Knows No Holiday!" is strictly a slogan. Good wishes, good health and all the other goodies.

MR. LOUIS WILEY, NEW YORK TIMES, New York City: My dear Mr. Wiley: Thanks for acknowledging my letter in which you said: "Your effort for one of the Hundred Neediest Cases deserves warm commendation. Be assured that we would not wish, directly or indirectly, to give the impression that we sought to disparage your worthy action." I am happier, sir, for that trade paper editor (with whom I am having a personal row) certainly hit too low when he stated that I had taken up the Times cause "without the Times' consent, etc."

ALFRED E. SMITH, EDITOR THE OUTLOOK, Empire State Bldg., City: My dear Mr. Smith: The excitement in the Senate and House of Representatives over the story in your magazine by Sergeant-at-Arms Barry, who was dismissed for his "effrontery," naturally interests me. I suspect you've heard of me, sir. Your contributor, Barry, is a pale carbon copy of my usual continuity, but I applaud him and your magazine for not being afraid.

It might interest you, Mr. Smith, to know that some Washington news correspondents for New York papers are saying among themselves that if Mr. Barry is made pretty mad he may spill too much and make faces redden that never blushed before. At any rate, you now know how it feels to be a real editor, but don't worry.

THE HON. FIORELLO LA GUARDIA, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.: Dear Mr. La Guardia: Thanks for your letter concerning the mysterious phone call to the broadcasting station. They merely told me that La Guardia called—and I never heard of another—so I assumed it was you, sir.

When you hurl a scallion at me for letting someone slip one over on me I can't object, and when you add that both Mrs. La Guardia and yourself always enjoy my talks at home and "sometimes get a real kick out of them" you make me happier.

Not that I'm changing the subject—but how about the beer we probably won't get? And if you don't mind my saying so from a taxpayer's point of view, I think the members of Congress who yelped so loud when they were asked to take a cut in salaries (to help balance the budget) missed a chance to make themselves more popular with Mr. and Mrs. America, who are carrying the freight with this Congress imposed tax and that one!

At any rate, it is nice to meet you this way, and don't stop writing because some jealous radio stars (who get little or no fan mail) started the legend that people who send fan mail are morons. Which reminds me of this: "Oh, see the nappy moron! He doesn't give a damn. I wish I were a moron. My gosh! Perhaps I am!!!"

MUSIC

Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra

SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM:

Overture—Academic Festival.....Brahms
Symphony in D Major, No. 2.....Brahms
Death and Transfiguration.....Strauss
Capriccio Espagnol.....Rimsky-Korsakow

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting, gave music in abundance last night in Syria Mosque. The audience was shockingly small; perhaps Pittsburghers are beginning to cast their votes for their own orchestra.

Mr. Lissfelt

In hearing this orchestra for the second time under Ormandy, one cannot fail to notice the vast changes this young man has wrought upon his men. One misses the scholarly attitude of his predecessor, that fine balance of tone and the gentler weaving of the music.

Ormandy has raised the tone to brilliance indeed. There is a virile beat in all he creates, but with it a monotony of conception from beginning to end of his program; a sort of hammer and tongs beat which begets loudness instead of grandeur and a total loss of subtle nuances.

In this respect the Brahms Symphony suffered immeasurably more than the overture. How different those blasts in the brass choir during the Strauss tone poem from Koussevitsky's playing of the brass, which earlier in the season left most of the audience in tears of joy.

The gay atmosphere of Rimsky-Korsakow's "Spanish Caprice" was more in keeping with the present temper of the orchestra. It will be interesting to watch the development of this young conductor and hear his music in his mellower years.

The orchestra plays a charming program in Carnegie Music Hall this afternoon, "An Afternoon in Vienna," music entirely from the irresistible Strauss Album.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Spine Chiller Feature In Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

If you want to treat your nerves to a tingle, your spine to a few chills, your flesh to a mess of creeps and your blood pressure to some extra jolts, the prescription of the week is "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," latest horror picture, that opened in the Stanley yesterday. It is as gruesome as "Frankenstein," but not steadily so, having plenty of what are called "lighter moments," and as weird as "Dracula," plus the excitement of swift movement of a weird melodramatic tale that is right up to date in its time and locale.

The story begins in London, with Lionel Atwill, owner of a wax figure museum of his own artistic creations, surviving a fire set by his partner to collect insurance on the place. Then it switches to New York, where Atwill, seemingly a cripple, opens a new museum, which attracts the attention of an energetic female reporter when a girl is murdered. She suspects that beneath the wax of one of the figures is the body of the girl, which has disappeared from the morgue.

Glenda Farrell plays the reporter, and in pursuit of her idea, she has strange experiences through contact with the queer Mr. Atwill and some of his assistants, including a mute. Fay Wray, her friend, however, has the most terrifying time when she goes to meet her finance, also an employe of the museum, and finds herself a prisoner. And that is as far as we can go into details, since this is a mystery film, the interest in which would be greatly lessened if you knew the answer.

The picture is in natural color, which also adds greatly to the effect, for the photography plays as important a part as anything else in getting the terror in the story to register. Even shadows are significant.

The parts are well acted by those mentioned as well as Frank McHugh, as a skeptical managing editor, Allen Vincent, Gavin Gordon, Edwin Maxwell and Holmes Herbert.

"Silver Cord" To Be Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 11.—If you don't belive the film companies are gaining courage, how about this? RKO is going to star Irene Dunne in "The Silver Cord," Sidney Howard's bitter but trenchant drama about selfish mother love.

For years now, the studios have dodged this play, fearing to tread upon such delicate ground. Of course, I don't know just how far RKO intends to go with Howard, but I gather it's the whole way. Jane Murfin will do the treatment and John Cromwell will direct.

"The Silver Cord" is sure to create controversy. When it played on the stage here, with Nance O'Neill as the jealous mother, and Kay Johnson as the clear-seeing daughter-in-law, a famous woman composer rushed back-stage and demanded to know why the drama was allowed to be produced. Others were just as loud in its praise. In no case, I believe, was the playgoer indifferent.

Should they want her, RKO will find the actress who created the mother role ready at hand. For that Broadway performance, Laura Hope Crewes won universal acclaim.

"The Silver Cord" will be produced by Pan Berman and is slated to start soon after Irene Dunne and her party return from their trip to Mexico and Palm Springs. That ought to be within a few days now.

Broadways Of the World — All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE BUDAPEST-ATHENS EXPRESS:—I'll be in Athens in three hours, and I'm glad of it. This has been a long trip, and a tiresome one. You gaze from your window for hours at a stretch, but there is nothing to see. A rolling, monotonous country. A group of mountains in the distance. A stop at a small station and the whine of a beggar. During the night, a terrible cold. During the day, an unpleasant warmth. No, I don't think honestly that you'd care much about it.

It will be best, I imagine, to give you different impressions of this journey in episodic fashion. The train lurches so at the moment that it is difficult to write. There are, however, definite pauses. Although this is the best train into Athens, we travel on but a single track. And every once in so often, we are compelled to pull on a side track and await the passing of a lumbering freight train.

When that occurs I can pound away in peace. And it seems to occur quite frequently. The porter tells me that we will be about two hours late arriving in Athens.

"But that's quite good," he adds. "You can figure by that that you are almost on time."

I suppose I must consider myself lucky. The porter in my car speaks decidedly good English. He's the only person on the train who speaks our lingo at all and, luckily enough, he's handling my compartment. Since there is but one other man in the entire car, my porter hasn't very much to do. He speaks to me very often; sometimes too often.

I asked him last night if they had many accidents along that road. He laughed.

"Quite a few," he replied. "It was almost on this very spot that this very train missed being blown up only a few weeks ago. If you look sharply through the windows, you will see a guard stationed every mile or so. They're taking no chances now."

I grew a bit nervous.

"What happened?" I asked.

"All political," he returned with a shrug. "Nobody knows the exact story. One man had two bombs planted and was just connecting the switch with a third when the whole thing blew up. This train wasn't more than a half-mile away when the engineer saw the explosion and stopped quickly. The man who planted the bomb was, of course, blown to pieces."

He laughed again.

"It was funny," he added.

"Must have been," I asserted. "Is that the closest you ever came to death on this run?"

He shook his head.

"No," he continued. "I came closer. I don't think I would have been killed even if we had hit those bombs. Only the first three cars would have been blown up, and this is the fifth.

"Yes, I came much closer in an accident last year. Maybe you remember reading about it. More than 40 people killed, I think. I was supposed to be on the train. It was my regular run. But at the last moment they held me over and put me on a special train that was going later. So my partner went instead of me.

"It was a very bad accident. Almost everybody was killed. The car that I always had was all smashed to pieces."

"And your partner," I asked. "Was he killed?"

He threw up his hands.

"No," he cried. "He was in a hospital for seven months, but he's walking around again now. You can't kill a railroad porter. Isn't that funny?"

"Hilarious," I agreed . . . . .

We have just stopped at a small Greek station. There seems to be no occasion for the stop, but I suppose it is the custom. The station is a small red building and, like most of them, is situated some distance away from the town it serves. You must gaze sharply to see the tiny town buried some two or three miles in the hills.

There is almost a total lack of life. On a sagging bench sits a man in uniform. He looks glumly at the train and makes no motion whatsoever. To his left sits a small boy, holding a mangy dog by its right ear. The boy looks at me and holds out his hand. If I nod, he will get up to take whatever coin I might toss him. But if I don't nod, he isn't going to make a wasted trip. I don't nod—so he sits as he is.

We stand there perhaps two minutes. The porter of the car ahead suddenly comes into view with an empty bottle and makes for a pump on the side of the station. He pumps water into the bottle, spilling three times the amount that he can get through the small neck.

When the bottle is filled, he gazes at it in the sunlight. He is apparently satisfied. He waves his right hand ahead and walks back to his car. There is a shrill whistle from far ahead. With a jerk the train moves.

I look at the little boy as we pass. He sees me looking and he raises his hand again. But this time he doesn't beg. He places his fingers to his nose and wriggles them vigorously. It is his sign of the recognition of the brotherhood of man . . .

The only other occupant of this car is the Austrian Ambasador to Grecee. He is a kindly-looking gentleman, but he encourages no conversation whatsoever. When he wants something done, he talks to the porter by motion. I made three distinct efforts to draw my only traveling companion into a bit of wordage—but all I received for my pains was a kindly smile. So finally gave it up.

Only once did I hear him speak. That came to pass when the Jugo-Slavian customs officials came through the train. It 'was three o'clock in the morning and the Austrian Ambasador, of course, was travelling on a diplomatic passport. But that made no difference to the highly important officials. After they had turned my luggage inside out, they insisted on awakening the Ambassador.

It was then that he spoke. Wide-eyed in admiration, I listened as the words poured forth from his compartment. I didn't catch many of his words, but I knew he was saying what was in my heart. The customs officials had no chance to reply. They retreated in confusion after a hurried apology.

For the first time in my life I wished that I, too, were an Ambassador . . .

We are but a short distance from Athens now. I am beginning to see signs of life and a more definite civilization. The porter just raced into my room with an animated kisser.

"I have news for you," he cried. "We are nearing Athens."

I nodded.

"I know that," I replied. "I can recognize the signs."

"But you don't know this," he insited. "We have gained time! We are only an hour and a half late!"

"That's fine," I returned, "but I don't quite understand. Is it so unusual for this train to make up its lost time?"

"Unusual?" he repeated. "Why, it's the first time it has ever happened in all my experience!"

He paused. And he evidently felt that he had been too enthusiastic.

"Of course," he added apologetically, "I've only been on this run for three years . . ."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

See in all the papers today about making Mr. Roosevelt a President instead of just a man that sends plans up to Congress for the fun of having them vetoed. Now you will hear the wail go up, "We are not ready in this free country for a Mussolini." Say, Mussolini could run this country with his eyes shut, in fact, that's the way our Congress has been running it. Mussolini, with no money, no natural resources, no nothing, has kept his country going, while we with a surplus of everything under the sun, are mangy with representatives and liberty. But we can't digest either one of 'em.

Storm Wrath On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Dramatic pictures of the blizzard that swept most of the country and appeared to center in the Mid-West, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Chicago is shown struggling against a 60-mile-an-hour gale, while traffic battles its way against blinding snow flurries and through four-foot drifts. The Globe-Trotter gives a thrilling description of the damage wrought.

From Ireland comes the first statement from Eamon de Valera since his re-election as President of the Irish Free State.

Pictures of the first bobsled races to be held on the slide at Garmisch, Bavaria, where in 1936 Olympics will be held, are presented.

More Coward Whimsies In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

George Seibel

The courage of this man Noel Coward is almost as unbelievable as his industry. In our sophisticated day he turns out a love story just as sugary as a candy valentine. And Claudette Colbert, who tried in vain for Frederic March when she was Poppaea and he was Mayor of Rome in "The Sign of the Cross," now scoops him up easily in the picture at the Penn, which has the torrid title of "Tonight Is Ours," though Coward originally called it "The Queen Was in Her Parlor." The picture audiences, being very grown-up, might think it was a fairy tale or a nursery rhyme under the old title.

Frederic March is a gallant lover, of course, and Claudette is a most adorable lovee. After they get going, the picture is mainly close-ups relieved by timely fade-outs. There is quite as much languorous love and purple passion as any of the poets from Sappho to Ella Wheeler Wilcox could have metered and rhymed. There are many very whimsical and fantastic touches—photography that is ne plus ultra or sine qua non or what you will—and some acting that gives it all the true spirit of Cowardice.

March is a mere commoner and Claudette is a royal queen. The story is almost a reversal of "The Student Prince," excepting that all of Coward's people, even his commoner, have aristocratic graces and tastes and talk his delightful small talk.

"Our Gang" supply extravagant humor and Walt Disney shows what happens to Bears who covet the honey of Bees—that rounds out a very happy program.

ADVANCE SUSPICION NOT DISPELLED

MAYBE IT WASN'T a fake, but they'll have a hard time convincing fight fans at large that the meeting of Primo Carnera and Ernie Schaaf in New York last night, in which Schaaf was counted out in the thirteenth round, was anything else. The general feeling had been that Schaaf was to lose, as the promoters had to get a man to fight Jack Sharkey in June, and Ernie could not well be sent against his own manager, and the outcome will be widely viewed as having confirmed advance suspicions.

Ernie Schaaf

It won't change the opinion of many if, as reported, Schaaf was unconscious at the finish and perhaps severely injured. It will be pointed out that one way to make a fake look real is actually to take a knockout punch—though this finisher was described as merely a "left jab to the nose" and "more of a shove than a punch"—and it will be recalled that through half a dozen rounds Schaaf made little attempt to protect himself and walked right into steady punishment. Whether or not fandom's suspicions are well founded, it would have been better for the game if the affair had not taken place, owing to the conditions that existed.

And even if Carnera won on his merits, a match between him and Sharkey will be a sorry offering as a world championship fight, in view of the show Jack made of Primo 16 months ago. At that they may make another big haul with it. Everybody claimed to know in advance that last night's affair was fixed for Carnera to win, and yet 20,000 turned out and paid for the privilege of booing it. Remember the birth rate.

RECALLING HIS FIRST meeting with Bugs Baer, the humorist whose writings are a daily feature of the Sun-Telegraph, John McGraw mentioned 1915 as the year. Baer said McGraw was mistaken. "We met some years before that," Bugs remarked.

"I was one of a mob of Philadelphia rooters that crashed the Giants' clubhouse after a torrid game at the Phillies' park. When we entered, McGraw, who was bandaging a wounded toe, said: 'I can lick any man in the room—and I haven't looked up yet.' And that was why we didn't meet formally at that time. By the time McGraw looked up, I was gone."

THE TROUBLE WITH most rookie pitchers when they try to break into the majors is that they haven't got control.

In striking contrast to the average recruit whose command of the pellet is uncertain, there comes now a young slabman with the Red Sox whose besetting fault is that his control often is too good. He is Mark McComiskey, Scotch and a right-hander, whom Erie dropped last year because of a sore arm.

IT IS CLAIMED for McComiskey that he can hit a gnat in the eye, so far as control is concerned, but he throws too many beauty balls. That's not control in the majors. It's just the opposite, and a pitcher with that failing is as fatally handicapped and as far from proper hurling as the so-called wild man who loads up the bases with passed batters. A ball straight through the middle may be control in the little leagues, but in the majors it's a wild pitch.

Branch Rickey

THOUGH GABBY STREET is supposed to be the manager of the Cardinals, it's Branch Rickey who talks business for the club from the playing end off the field, and he surely has done a lot this winter to change the complexion of the St. Louis outfit.

No fewer than six Redbird figures that had become familiar to Mound City fans, together with one new acquisition in the person of Pitcher Owen Carroll, who never got a chance to don a St. Louis uniform, have been sent away by Rickey since the close of last season. Another, Coach Clyde Wares, was released, but has been recalled.

CATCHER GUS MANCUSO and Pitcher Ray Starr first were traded to the Giants for Catcher Bob O'Farrell, Pitchers Bill Walker and Jim Mooney and Outfielder Ethan Allen. Next Jim Bottomley was swapped to the Reds for Carroll, Outfielder Estel Crabtree and nine other Cincinnati players shipped to Cardinal farms.

Mike Gonzales, veteran catcher and pitching coach, was cast adrift. Pitcher Sylvester Johnson was sent to Columbus and finally Carroll and Infielder Jake Flowers were traded to the Dodgers for Pitcher Dazzy Vance and Shortstop Gordon Slade.

SCOUTING IN BASEBALL started on a small scale way back in the days of Cap Anson at Chicago, when Anson engaged Tim Murnane, a noted diamond writer and former player, to look up desirable timber. The custom has grown with the passing years to such an extent that the 16 major league clubs now employ more than half a hundred ivory hunters. The wide scope to which scouting advanced may be judged from the fact that since 1909, Charley Barrett, Cardinal agent, has traveled 400,000 miles, equivalent to 16 times around the world, through 46 states, Mexico and Canada, in search of promising players.

ELY CULBERTSON, contract bridge author, recently was feted in San Francisco, and—no foolin'—several engineers appeared for the avowed purpose of asking him what he thought about several of the many Bay bridge building projects. Culbertson took it smilingly and insisted on passing it off as a joke.

"Should contract bridge articles be printed on the sports pages?" was one of the questions put to Culbertson in California. "Assuredly," he replied, "because it is the greatest of mental sports, and you will find that bridge players almost invariably are also keen for such physical sports as baseball, football, boxing, golf and tennis."

CAPT. JOHN (BUNK) M'GEEVER will be in the Duquesne University starting lineup against West Virginia University in tonight's basketball game in the Bluff gymnasium. It is an unusual situation that makes the presence of a team captain in the starting lineup a news item.

Bunk McGeever

But it will be even more interesting to compare McGeever's form with his play of the early season. Not since Duquesne's first and only loss of the campaign to Westminster College has Bunk been found in the starting array. The tip from the Bluff is to watch him go tonight and to look out for a vast improvement in his work.

AS AN AFTERMATH of the Dukes' poor play in the first Westminster game, Coach Chick Davies demoted the veteran captain, along with Jim MacDougall. Circumstances, however, bring about the reappearance of McGeever in tonight's game against Coach Stadsvold's West Virginia passers, and Bunk will be filling an important role. For the Duke varsity is crippled through the loss of Marty Reiter at guard, Art Feldman at one forward, and Paul Birch at the other. Feldman has a wrenched back, while Birch is suffering from a swollen ankle that was twisted in the Geneva College game last Tuesday night. This situation will place the brunt of the Mountaineer game on the shoulders of McGeever. It's a big opportunity and a great spot for a real comeback.

BOSTON BOXER REMAINS IN SEMI-COMA

surgeon at the hospital, ordered all visitors barred from Schaaf's room and said a study was being made of X-ray plates to determine whether the boxer's skull was fractured. Until such time as the study was made he declined to give a diagnosis.

Dr. Healy issued a bulletin, which said:

SCHAAF KNOCKED OUT

Sluggish from the start and conspicuously unconscious at the finish, Schaaf toppled back from Primo's blow, sat down a bit bewildered and then, after a few seconds' meditation, he crumpled in a heap in the resin. After defying frantic efforts to revive him in his corner, Ernie was lugged out of the ring, ironically enough, by Sharkey and two policemen.

If it wasn't, as many critics insisted, one of the best "acts" the prize ring has known in many a day, it was very dramatic and also disconcerting to those at the ringside who were bored by a dozen slow, lumbering rounds and in no way impressed by the poke that put Ernie on the floor for the first time and "out," while Referee Billy (Glover) Cavanaugh, boxing coach at West Point, counted 10. 51 seconds after the start of the last round.

LOOKED LIKE 'ACT'

Right up to the finish, it looked like a "barney" to the experts, many of whom had warned the customers in advance and developed a consequent rush for the turnstiles that packed the arena and forced the mounted police to disperse the overflow crowd.

Carnera, from the start, outspeeded, outboxed and outpunched his smaller rival, using his advantage of nearly 60 pounds to big advantage and handling Ernie with ease at close quarters.

The left that put Schaaf on the floor, for the first and only time, was nowhere near as robust as some of the clumsy wallops Carnera had landed earlier and with much earnestness. Nevertheless, there was blond Ernie on the floor, apparently quite dead to the world; there was the manifest alarm of all his handlers, the police, the doctors, and the trip to the hospital.

CROWD BAFFLED

Most of the crowd remained for fully 15 minutes, arguing and jeering, equally as baffled as the ringsiders as to whether to accept the developments at their face value.

Johnny Buckley, Schaaf's manager, indignantly rejected the suspicions of visitors to the dressing room and loudly recalled that Ernie had passed out in much the same way from a battering at the very close of his fight with Max Baer in Chicago last fall.

KIN RUSH TO BEDSIDE

WRENTHAM, Mass., Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Mrs. Lucy Schaaf, mother of Ernie Schaaf, today was rushing to the bedside of her son, in a New York hospital after being knocked out last night in a bout with Primo Carnera, giant Italian, at Madison Square Garden.

Mrs. Schaaf was accompanied by her two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Barry and Mrs. Mary Halloran.

They left their home here by automobile in a heavy snowstorm and were rushing to Providence, R. I., where they will board a train for New York City.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A SIGHTLESS OVERSEER—Though totally blind, Louis Panzer oversees the entire harness department of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows, and does everything required in his trade as well as when he had his sight. Eleven years ago, he lost his vision, but he still cuts, stitches and operates his own bench, as well as supervising and laying out the work of his three assistant harness makers. Every piece of the huge stock of circus harness passes through his hands for his judgement on repairs and materials. Panzer is 50 years old and may be seen at his work bench every day, either at the winter quarters in Sarasota, Fla., or while the show is on tour during the summer months. THE MUSHROOM—The mushroom that we generally see is but the fruiting body of the fungus, while its vegetative body corresponding to stems and roots of a plant rests underground. This part of the mushroom is called mycelium, or spawn, and consists of numerous thin white threads which rise from the soil. Small knots developing upon the surface part of these threads then grow into mushrooms.

TOMORROW—MORE RIPLEY ODDITIES

REDS ACCUSED OF TAMPERING

CINCINNATI, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, today said a charge that his club was tampering with a Columbus American Association player, was ridiculous.

The accusation was made by Larry MacPhail, president of the Columbus club, in a letter to Commissioner K. M. Landis.

In his letter to Judge Landis, commissioner of organized baseball, MacPhail asserted that "if quoted correctly," the management of the Cincinnati Reds is guilty of tampering with a Columbus player.

AFTER JOHNSON

Both President Weil and Manager Donie Bush, MacPhail wrote, have been quoted as expressing a desire to have Sylvester Johnson, recent Columbus acquisition, added to the Reds' 1933 pitching staff.

Johnson, veteran right-hander, was purchased from the St. Louis Cardinals, after waivers had been obtained from the 15 other major league clubs.

MacPhail said such statements concerning Johnson's sale from the majors to the minors would make it extremely difficult for the local club to sign him to a Columbus contract.

BROWNS' ROSTER SMALL

ST. LOUIS, Feb 11.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Browns go to their Florida training camp with only 23 players, the mid-season limit.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The professional football moguls are considering stealing a march on the collegians next fall by observing rules of their own which they think will be more attractive from the standpoint of the spectators . . . For instance, they may erase the stumble-fumble rule, which is being retained by the Rules Committee, and are contemplating returning to the old method of bringing the ball out for the try-for-point from the position where it crossed the goal line on the touchdown . . . Another plan being considered is free use of the forward pass without the penalty for successive failures.

Sell Hall, former famous local Negro pitcher with the Homestead Grays and other teams, has turned inventor and has just had patented an automobile wheel device which is being considered by the manufacturers and may put him on Easy Street with royalties . . . Mose Butch will not decide definitely upon his mode of battle against Fidel La Barba at the Garden Monday night until the fight gets under way. . . . He will start off boxing in orthodox fashion and will stick to that style unless the going gets tough, in which event he may turn around and give Fidel a bit of southpawing to worry about.

---

A determined attempt is to be made to revive rowing in the Pittsburgh sector this summer by Tom Carter, Homestead machinist, who for years was a star with the Leander Club, of Canada. . . . Carter has enlisted the assistance of other rowing-minded men, selected a course and is arranging for a series of conferences at which plans will be advanced against the breaking of the winter weather. He believes the sport can be made attractive for the colleges and universities of the district as well as for the amateur athletic clubs. . . . One of the men on whom he is counting for endorsement of his plan is George Gibson, manager of the Pirates, a Canadian, who knows what this rowing business is all about.

RULES MAKERS IN CONFAB

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—Members of the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee are in session at the Green Hills Farms, Overbrook, today, the session having convened last night with Walter E. Okeson, of Lehigh University, presiding.

The committee will make a study of various proposals for rule changes, aimed at speeding up and adding to the safety of the game.

One recommendation of the American Football Coaches' Association to eliminate play near the side lines is to receive considerable discussion. The plan is to have the ball brought out 10 yards from the side lines whenever it is downed closer than 10 yards to the out-of-bounds mark.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, veteran coach and life member of the committee, arrived for the sessions. Okeson takes the chair for the first time since appointment to the chairmanship at the death of E. K. Hall.

VANGS BATTLE SHADY SIDE

The Pittsburgh Polo League trophy chase approaches a climax tonight, as the league-leading Vang and Shady Side Academy entries fight it out for first place.

Each contestant has won three and dropped one encounter. The prep school riders already hold a decision over the Vangs, 17½ to 13, with easy wins over the Cavalry and South Park. The lone blemish on their record was an 8½-to-5½ victory in the 107th Field Artillery.

The Vangs had little trouble subduing both service teams and South Park, but found the Academy poloists a serious obstacle. They will yield an eight-goal handicap to their first division rivals, as the gong brings them together at Hunt Armory tonight. The toss-in is scheduled for 8:45 o'clock. The lineup:

| Shady Side | | Vangs |
|---|---|---|
| Drake | No. 1 | Vang |
| McCahill | No. 2 | Mazuzan |
| Aaron | No. 3 | Adams |

Referee—Maj. E. L. Hubbard.

308TH PLAYS CULVER

The 308th Cavalry trio is in Culver, Ind., today, and tonight will meet the crack Culver Military Academy riders. The Cavalry squad consists of Lieuts. Bill Young, Morris Linton and Elliott Perritt. A second game will be played tomorrow afternoon and if the teams split even a rubber game may be arranged for Pittsburgh.

SOCCER GAME OFF

The soccer game between Curry, of the Keystone League, and the Cleveland Slavias, in the second round of the National open challenge cup competition, scheduled for Greenlee Field tomorrow afternoon, was postponed today on account of the heavy snow.

BLUFF BOXERS SCORE VICTORY OVER PITT

Probable Lineup

| Duquesne | Pos. | West Virginia |
|---|---|---|
| MacDougal | F | Sortet |
| McGeever (c) | F | Slate |
| Brenner | C | Stydaher |
| Moore | G | King |
| Serany | G | Stewart |

Referee — Cal Boster. Umpire — Dan Daugherty.

By JESS CARVER

Duquesne University's chances of cheering its varsity basketball team's eighth consecutive victory appear rather excellent tonight as the Dukes engage the staggering West Virginia Mountaineers in the local gymnasium. The appearance of the Mountaineers is their second in Pittsburgh of the season, the boys from the mountain state having been thumped soundly by Pitt a couple weeks back.

Even though the home team will enter the combat tonight with a revised lineup and with three stars on the bench more or less crippled and banged up, it will take a complete reversal of form on the part of the Mountaineers if they are to beat the Dukes.

W. VA. IMPOTENT

The visitors have been in the East all week, and all they have to show for their pains are a flock of punched railroad tickets and successive defeats at the hands of Georgetown, New York University and Temple. The Mountaineers haven't won enough ball game to keep warm this winter.

It is just as well, perhaps, for the Duquesne record, that the opposition tonight does not figure to be any too tough. With such stellar performers as Feldman, Birch and Reiter out—or at least, out unless the need for their services becomes actually pressing—the Red and Blue may not go so hot.

M'GEEVER TO START

Capt. Bunk McGeever, who has been a member of the reserve squad ever since the game with Westminster, will get to start tonight, not at his usual post as center, but at a forward, paired with Jim MacDougal. Brenner is to play center and Dudey Moore one of the guards, with Frank Serany, brilliant sophomore star, the other.

Coach Francis Stadsvold may switch his lineup again, seeing as how the combinations he employed against Georgetown, N. Y. U. and Temple failed to click, but Capt. Sortet and Stydaher appear to be fixtures.

The Mountaineers have yet to win a game this campaign from a district major rival, having been beaten by Carnegie Tech, West Virginia Wesleyan and Pitt. In a preliminary the Duquesne and Mountaineer freshmen fives will meet. This game is scheduled for 7 o'clock.

Pitt Boxers Bow

They had little Fidel LaBarba, the former flyweight champion of the world, doing everything but a tap-dance out in the Stadium Pavilion last night as he essayed to entertain the crowd while Coaches Joe Orsini, of Pitt, and Joe Millet, of the Dukes, attempted to slip fast ones past one another on the occasion of the Pitt-Duquesne boxing bouts. The Dukes won the match, 4 to 3.

The mixup came with the advent of the 165-pound class bout. Francis (Cowboy) Seigel, Pitt captain, was listed to box Chip Chapalla, of the Dukes, but Coach Miller did not know how far back Seigel had gone since the last time he boxed and simply astounded Coach Orsini by sending the man he had weighed in during the afternoon for the 175-pound class bout, Carl Avington, into the ring. Orsini then had Seigel step out and inserted his own 175-pounder, Joe Kopp. The Dukes just as promptly put Chapalla in against Kopp, for they feared Seigel and needed the bout to insure the victory.

FIDEL CHEERS CROWD

After keeping the four boxers stepping in and out of the ring for at least 20 minutes, the two athletic directors, Harrison, of Pitt, and Layden, of Duquesne, went into a huddle, along with the coaches and Announcer Ulhardt Hangartner called upon LaBarba to keep the crowd, which was fast becoming a bit noisy, quiet. LaBarba graciously obliged, stepped up to the microphone and recounted some of his experiences as an amateur and a member of the U. S. Olympic team.

The matter of the boxers finally was straightened out, with the program going on as arranged. Avington scored a technical knockout over Kopp and Chappella, after being soundly thumped in the first round, won a close decision over Seigel, who was slow and in none too good condition after his long layoff.

Both coaches were at fault—Orsini for announcing all week that he would forfeit in the 175-pound class and then, at the last minute, entering Kopp and Miller for shifting his boxers from one class to another. After all, boys—ethics are not something to be

By JULIUS LEVIN

Perry High School's sensational dash to the championship in Section II of the City League continued uninterrupted today, but the unbeaten leaders still were shaking from the scare tossed their way yesterday by Langley.

Generally, favorites came through in yesterday's City League and W. P. I. A. L. encounters.

Perry was able to defeat Langley only by a two-point margin at 16 to 14. Bob Kornick, high point leader in the City League, was the big gun of the attack, with four field goals and a foul for nine points. Langley led, 8 to 7 at the half, but Perry managed to pull up even and then pass the scrappy Corliss outfit in the final quarter.

PEABODY BEATEN

In other City circut frays, Westinghouse defeated Peabody, 27 to 16; Schenley downed Connelley, 31 to 26; Fifth Avenue upset Allderdice's hopes, 28 to 25; South Hills won over Vocational, 40 to 25 and Oliver took Carrick, 30 to 18.

Scott, of North Braddock, Monessen and New Kensington were victims of defeats in the W. P. I. A. L., the Monessen and Kensington setbacks coming as upsets.

Scott lost to Rankin in a nip and tuck battle, 22 to 21, the victory giving Jock Rosenberg's charges the lead in Section XIII. Ralph Ferguson, Scott forward, led in the scoring with 11 points. Arnold took the measure of New Kensington, serving Carl Glock's team the initial defeat of the season, 25 to 24.

California interrupted Monessen's victory march, beating the Dittymen, 19 to 16. The victory gave California a tie with Monessen for the lead in Section V.

HOMESTEAD WINS

Bill Campbell's Homestead team defeated McKeesport in Section VII, 21 to 15. Leetsdale knocked off Aspinwall, 27 to 14; New Castle staged a brilliant comeback in the second half to beat New Brighton, 28 to 17. Aliquippa swamped Beaver, 50 to 19. Ford City clinched the title in Section VI by beating Freeport, 28 to 15. Formont ended Carnegie's title aspirations, 33 to 26. Hurst took Perropolis, 31 to 24; Norwin won another, beating Blairsville, 34 to 18. McDonald downed Oakdale, 40 to 9; Waynesburg upset Canonsburg, 20 to 15, and East Pittsburgh just about iced the title in Section XVII by beating Elizabeth, 25 to 11.

In the Catholic High School League, St. Joseph defeated St. Thomas, 54 to 37 and St. Mary's downed Connellsville, 29 to 27.

Corbett Continues Fight For Life

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Jim Corbett remained in a critical condition at his home in Bayside today.

John Kelleher, of Boston, a friend of Corbett's for many years, said the former heavyweight champion had passed a comparatively comfortable night but that his condition showed no appreciable change, either for better or worse.

STARS COMPETE AT WEST VA.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 11.—With the individual entry list headed by Ralph Metcalfe, crack Marquette University Negro sprinter and one of the United States Olympic team stars, the fifth annual West Virginia University indoor track and field meet drew some 325 athletes, representing 13 colleges and universities and 22 high schools.

Preliminary heats and field trials were slated to get under way at 2 o'clock this afternoon, with semi-finals and finals on this evening.

Metcalfe was accompanied here by four other Marquette athletes, including the team captain, Jack Tierney, Chester Trost and Joe Dzwinel, sprinters, and Leon Schram, a pole vaulter.

Princeton, Michigan, Michigan State, Penn State, Pittsburgh and other universities have entered squads.

The night games start at 7:30, with finals in the pole vault. The first track event—semi-finals in the 70-yard high hurdles for colleges—is scheduled for 8 p. m. In all, six semi-finals and 21 finals comprise the evening program.

Authorities say they look for several records to be smashed because of the caliber of some of the athletes. Some field house marks—established at the first annual games in 1919—still stand.

The University of Michigan is picked to capture team honors.

Britons Rally In Cricket Test

BRISBANE, Australia, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—After dismissing Australia for a first innings total of 340, England today went to the wickets for their first innings in the fourth test cricket match and scored 99 runs without loss of a wicket when stumps were pulled for the day.

Play will be resumed Monday.

PIRATES NOT TO GO AFTER DAZZY VANCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirate management will make no effort to acquire Pitcher Dazzy Vance, the home office announced today in making its position on Vance clear. A late report stated that the Cardinals, who recently secured the Dazzler in a deal with the Dodgers, would swap the erstwhile fast-ball king for an infielder.

Dazzy Vance

The Pittsburgh sharpshooting staff is of such a calibre as to permit of strengthening, but Manager Gibson does not seem to think that Vance would be of service. Gibby's opinion is shared by many who have watched Dazzy closely in the past two years.

It is a co-incidence that Dazzy made his major league debut with the Pirates. Arthur was a member of the Bucco entourage of 1915, but it was seven years later before he reached a stride that made him a standout pitcher in the majors. Dazzy swung into form with the Dodgers in 1922.

AND WAS HE FAST!

But the "buckshot" is gone and the snap curve has disintegrated; it may be no more than a "wrinkle" now.

The "buckshot" term grew out of a classic utterance of The Dazzler when he pitched for New Orleans in the Southern Association in 1921. Pie Traynor was a member of the Birmingham club at the time. Traynor related the incident.

The afternoon was stifling as Vance bewildered the Baron attack. The heat was so intense that few of the athletes had much to say, but Vance's "swifter" was doing some talking. He fanned 15 batters in seven innings.

As he walked past the Birmingham dugout in the seventh, the perspiring Dazzler paused long enough to remark in his best Nebraskan droll:

"Is that buckshot I'm a-throwin' botherin' you fellers?"

DAZ PACKED 'EM IN

In the past two seasons the "swifter" and the fast "hook" has been absent without leave. Ordinary batters have been taking toe-holds on The Dazzler. Vance was just about a 50-50 pitcher last summer.

It would be good for the league were Vance to get back into a winning stride, for he is loaded with appeal. Brooklyn was wont to turn out en masse when The Dazzler was booked to pitch.

CHAMPIONS WIN

The two intercollegiate Conference champions, Shricker, of Pitt, and Moore, of the Dukes, won their bouts. Moore failed to win by an impressive margin over Bernie Spiegal of Pitt, and at no time was able to land convincingly with his vaunted right hand on the bobbing and weaving Bernie. Shricker whipped Duquesne's Matt Rumora.

Al Grayber refereed all the bouts. Chester Phillips and Walter McVey were the judges. Attorney Jerry O'Neil and Dr. John B. Sutherland were the timers, and Ulhard Hangartner was the announcer.

Lawson Gets O. K. As Thornhill Aide

PALO ALTO, Cal., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Jim Lawson, captain of the 1924 Stanford football team, has been recommended for varsity end coach by the board of athletic control.

The recommendation, made at the request of C. E. (Tiny) Thornhill, recently selected head coach, is subject to the approval of the University board of trustees.

Steel City Club sports performers and officials engage in activities upon widely scattered fronts today. Along the City Handball League line, battles for position loom in both the A and the B divisions, while in the squash racquets realm Pittesburgh stars cavort in National championship play at the University Club in Detroit.

Even tennis, though out of season as far as actual skirmishing is concerned, cops attention with J. Phillips Davis, president of the district net group, in New York at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association and seeking the 1934 U. S. L. T. A. conclave as a Western Pennsylvania morsel.

Y. M. H. A. TEAM LEADS

Despite the fact that Lou Alman's crack Y. M. H. A. host appears to have matters nicely in hand in the Class A handball chase, this afternoon's invasion of the Keystone A. C. by the Bellefielders is fraught with degree of menace to the pace-setting array. Keystone, with Koubek, Manos, and Dunlap in trim, packs power aplenty and will be prepared for do-or-die home stand that may mean second position for the Keystoners as Downtown Y. M. C. A. takes perilous trek to the P. A. A. domain.

Meanwhile in the Class B sector, Y. M. H. A. should enhance slender lead over the Winged Headers by entertaining the weak Keystone entry as P. A. A. jaunts to Downtown Y. M. C. A. for hazardous combat.

Seven Pittsburghers await the call to arms in the National squash debating. McCook Reed and Jim Ebbert, of Pittsburgh Golf Club, are slated to bear the burden of individual singles title play, with Bill Bickel, Keystone star; Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. luminary; Joe Oliver, talented Pittsburgh Golf Club contribution; Charley Fagan, K. A. C. veteran; and Alex Robinson, Allegheny Country Club contender, comprising the local five-man team entry in the order given.

MAY HOLD DOUBLES

It is understoow that a doubles event is likely to be added to the championship program at Detroit, the Pittsburgh delegation will pair off for two-man mixing.

Davis travels to New York with better than outside chance of landing the U. S. L. T. A. session for this bailiwick. Definite word from the Middle States section to the effect that the weighty organization is heartily with the Pittsburgh Tennis Association in its plan to bring the pow-wow hither has been received at P. T. A. headquarters and such influential tennis men as Chuck Garland, Paul Gibbons, A. L. Burtis, and numerous others have committed themselves to the Steel City cause. It is possible that J. E. (Jack) McLain, former P. T. A. president, may join Davis in New York at noon to add the force of his wide personal acquaintance to the campaign.

MRS. MOODY NOT TO BE RANKED

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Any prospect of a serious fight over the failure to recommend Helen Wills Moody for the No. 1 ranking position in American women's tennis, because of her absence from the 1932 National tournaments, was dissipated by delegates here to attend the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The executive committee, whipping the program into shape, was slated to approve the ranking list, headed by Helen Jacobs, among the women, and Ellsworth Vines, among the men, thereby paving the way for the full convention to vote approval today.

PLAYED IN EUROPE

Mrs. Moody, as was the case two years ago, has not been recommended for a ranking position "because of insufficient data," which means, in other words, that she confined her tournament competition for the past year to foreign courts.

Two years ago an effort was made to place Mrs. Moody at the top of the women's list, regardless of her absence from the United States championships, but this was voted down because of an established policy of the Association in not ranking players who fail to compete in at least three major tournaments at home.

There is some possibility the association may alter this policy, to the extent of considering the performances of American stars abroad making up the national ranking list. Such a change has been urged, particularly to cover an exceptional case such as that of Mrs. Moody, whose position as world No. 1 player is unchallenged. She easily defeated the present American champion, Mrs. Jacobs, last year in the final round at Wimbledon, and has not even lost a set in five years.

SCRIBES PROTEST

A controversy which may reach the floor of the convention involves an open protest filed by the Lawn Tennis Writers' Association of America against alleged discourtesies and "inconsiderate treatment" by tennis clubs during major tournaments.

The Panthers, seeking their eighth victory in a row, are in South Bend for their second test of the season with Notre Dame. On an earlier occasion, they trimmed the Irish in a hard fought and very exciting tussle here.

Carnegie, idle for the past 10 days and defeated by Notre Dame their last time out, will leave this afternoon for Cleveland, where tonight they'll engage Western Reserve. The Plaid squad sat in on the Pitt-Reserve game here Wednesday night and were able to get a pretty fair line on the capabilities of the Red Cats.

HAGAN APPOINTED

The University of Pittsburgh athletic council has approved the selection of Leroy Lewis, of Derry, Pa., a junior in the School of Business Administration, as varsity football manager for 1933.

At the same meeting the athletic council approved the action of the executive committee in appointing James Hagan to the post of graduate manager of athletics. This post has been vacant for some years. Hagan has been acting as assistant director of athletics and his promotion to his new post will probably mean that his former position will be held open, while he takes over the duties of both jobs.

PITT TANKERS WIN

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 11.—To pool records and one college mark went by the boards here last night as the University of Pittsburgh swimming team defeated the the Franklin and Marshall squad, 37 to 22, in an Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming Association meet.

Gordon (Slim) Chalmers, member of the United States Olympic swimming team, bettered his own mark for the 100-yard dash by one second.

The visiting relay team had little trouble taking the opening event on the program, being clocked in at 1 minute and 38 2-5 seconds. This time beats the old time set up by the Rutgers freshmen last season.

Adlersburg, Pitt star, coasted to an easy victory in the breast stroke event, breaking the former record of Harry Walker, of Lehigh. Adlersburg's time was 2:44 1-5. The summary:

200-yard free style relay—Won by Pitt (Denny, Jones, Stoner, Adlersberg); second, F. & M. (Schneider, Levine, Chalmers, Hoar). Time—1:38 2-5.

Fancy diving—Won by Carik, Pitt (86.41); second, Hoar, F. & M. (70.41); third, Woodward, F. & M. (64.4).

50-yard dash—Won by Stinner, Pitt; second, Hoar, F. & M.; third, Reiley, Pitt. Time—:25 1-5.

150-yard back stroke—Won by Chalmers, F. & M.; second, Seawzuk, Pitt; third, Jones, Pitt. Time—1:55 1-5.

440-yard free style—Won by Denny, Pitt; second, Roe, F. & M.; third, Schneider, F. & M. Time—5:44 3-5.

Referee—Prof. Wesley Gadd.

GENEVA VICTOR

GREENVILLE, Pa., Feb. 11.—Geneva broke back into the victory column here last night, but had a merry tussle before downing Thiel's game Lutheran crew. The score was 31 to 27.

Geneva trailed by three points at half time, but led by Cliff Aultman, brilliant forward, rallied in the second half to win. Harter, Thiel forward, scored 14 points for his team, one less than was tallied by the Geneva ace. The lineup:

BOBCATS TRIUMPH

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—In a thrilling extra period clash, West Virginia Wesleyan nosed out Fairmont, 39 to 37, here last night before a homecoming crowd of 1,200 spectators. Trailing at the half, 22 to 16, Wesleyan came back in the second 20 minutes of play and went ahead shortly before the end of the game. Wilson, Fairmont center, shot a foul to tie the count at 35-all a few seconds before the gun.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Ralph Greenleaf, world champion, regained the lead in his 1,200-point pocket billiard exhibition match against Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia last night, outscoring his rival 229 to 64 in nine innings. Greenleaf now has a total of 1,000 points against 964 for Ponzi with two more blocks to be played.

BAXTER LOSES TO BROWN AT ARENA

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Charley Baxter, local lightweight boxer, has a defeat in his record today because he couldn't catch up with Willard Brown, of Indianapolis, in the 10-round main bout in the Arena, on the North Side, last night. He chased young Mr. Brown here, there and everywhere, all over that ring, but Brownie was too slick, and tied him up every time Charley got within hitting distance.

The judges agreed upon Brown as the winner, and the referee called it a draw, so the judges' vote counted.

Officially, Baxter didn't win the fight, yet he probably feels that actually he didn't lose it, either. He forced it all of the way from the fifth round on, with his opponent being on a bicycle or roller skates, taking it on the well known lam, and doing enough clinching to disqualify many a fighter.

BAXTER OUTGENERALED

The heck of it was that, with all of his chasing and forcing for position, Charley didn't think fast enough to go in punching. He kept stalking with both fists up in front of him, and, before he could get the guns off his shoulders, he would find himself in the slippery Brown's embrace, after Brown would have scored a few light defensive lefts in an effort to stave off the rush. In the last round, Charley tore in swinging and began to go places, but it was too late to give him a decisive margin.

Brown piled up a sizable lead with his clever boxing and scoring in the first four rounds, and then he slowed down and had to take it on the run. But, as already related, he was such a good footracer and smotherer of his opponent's attack that he was able to hold some of that lead and come off with the verdict, a popular one with the crowd. Neither man ever was in danger. Baxter weighed 139¼ pounds and Brown 136¾.

THOMAS IS WINNER

In the other scheduled 10-rounder, Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, fighting far below his usual form, found himself outpointed for three rounds by Jimmy Sayers, a shifty boxer from Lafayette, Ind., but came on to hold his own in the fourth and win the fifth, at the end of which session the referee had to call a halt because Sayers had a badly cut eye. Thomas thus winning by a technical knockout.

Johnny Durso, of Oakland, was knocked out midway in the third round of the second bout by Henry Scarpuzzi, of Canton, O., a left hook flush to the jaw spilling Durso for the count after he had led throughout up to this point.

Between Rounds

Fidel La Barba worked out at the Pittsburgh Lyceum yesterday instead of in the Motor Square gym and will continue his drills there today and tomorrow in preparation for his battle with Mose Butch at Motor Square Garden, Monday night. The fans are invited to see him train.

Johnny Datto, the local Filipino boxer, will cut out boxing lightweights and junior welterweights and go back to mingling with the featherweights. He can make 126 pounds, but has been boxing 'em up to 140. In his last four bouts, his opponents were: Ray Miller, 130½; Lew Massey, 133; Tony Falco, 131½, and Barney Ross, 136.

No. 23.

AN ORDINANCE — Authorizing and regulating the issuance of exonerations for taxes and water rents.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That exonerations for taxes shall be issued by the Board of Assessors and exonerations for water rents shall be issued by the Board of Water Assessors as hereinafter provided.

SECTION 2. Where a change in the physical character of real estate has been made by removal or total or partial destruction of the improvements thereon, or an error has been made in calculating the value of said real estate or the tax due thereon, the Board of Assessors, during the year in which said change or error has been made, or during the next succeeding year, may recompute the tax and issue an exoneration for the excess tax thus ascertained.

SECTION 3. Where premises are vacant and the entire supply of water shall, at the owner's written notice served on the Board of Water Assessors, be turned off by their direction by the Bureau of Water, and such water shall be turned on only by the Bureau of Water at the owner's written notice to the Board of Water Assessors, exonerations of ninety (90%) per centum for the flat assessment for the period during which the water is shut off shall be issued; provided that the period during which the water is shut off is for a greater than sixty (60) consecutive days. All requests for exonerations for excessive assessments must be made during the current year during which the assessments are made or during the next succeeding year.

Where fixtures are removed and water use is discontinued, exonerations may be issued covering the discontinued use from the date of approval of contract covering the revised water uses.

In case any owner shall cause or allow water to be used for any purpose, or in any fixtures for which there is no approved water contract on file in the office of the Bureau of Water, the rate for such usage per fixture shall be at the rate specified by ordinance of Council and shall date from the preceding January 1st, and the water for the entire premises shall be shut off until an approved contract for such additional water uses or fixtures has been signed and placed on file in the office of the Bureau of Water. All fixtures on any premises, whether used or not, will be assessed as long as they remain in position.

SECTION 4. All exonerations for amounts in excess of fifty and no/100 dollars ($50.00) in taxes shall be submitted to the Finance Committee of Council for its approval, together with a statement of the board responsible therefor, of the reasons why said exonerations should be issued. If approved by the Finance Committee, the clerk of said committee shall certify the approved exonerations to the City Treasurer or to the Collector of Delinquent Taxes, respectively, and the board requesting the same shall issue exonerations to those entitled thereto.

SECTION 5. Exonerations for taxes and hereunder shall be received in payment of taxes and water rents for their face value, provided they are offered in payment within two (2) years from their date.

If the taxes or water rents on a particular property have been paid prior to the issuance of said exonerations the Mayor and the Controller are authorized and directed to issue warrants in payment of said exonerations and charge the same to the proper appropriation.

SECTION 6. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Passed in Council February 6, 1933.
Approved February 10, 1933.

Inspecting the New V-8 Model

MISS WERTZ, TYRONE GIRL, HEARING ABOUT THE 1933 FORD V-8 AT THE FACTORY BRANCH

LATEST FORDS ON DISPLAY

New models were placed on display in the showrooms of all dealers as well as at the factory branch, 5000 Baum boulevard.

Retaining the V-type 8-cylinder motor, the new car is built along distinctively modern lines, with longer wheelbase, larger and roomier body, faster acceleration and increased power and speed. There are 14 body types.

VICTORS NAMED IN CONTEST

Ralph H. Moore, of Oakdale, today was possessor of a new automobile radio, while C. O. Albert, of Avalon, Hugh Cooper and James V. Dunmyer, Pittsburgh, each had his bank account augmented by a $25 check.

The four were the winners from the Pittsburgh district in a contest conducted for two months by the United American Bosch Corporation.

The four prizes were presented yesterday in the radio department of Kaufmann's. Ninety prizes, valued at $10,000, were distributed throughout the country.

The contest was in the form of a poll of the popularity of radio artists, winners being selected for the best reasons for making choices and benefits of Bosch radio reception.

Eight artists, selected in different lines of performance, who received the largest vote from the 25 million ballots polled, were presented with golden cups, Friday.

NEEDY GET AID AT CLINIC

The free medical clinic at Old St. Patrick's is not the least of the welfare activities of Father Cox, particularly on account of the weather that has been prevailing the last few days. This clinic is located at Seventeenth street and Liberty avenue, always has a matron and trained nurse in charge and is open from 10:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. daily. It is sponsored by the Allegheny County Medical Society which assigns one or two physicians for attendance every afternoon.

Incidentally just now there is considerable illness among the poor and Old St. Patrick's clinic is doing its share in relieving distress and correcting conditions.

Father Cox continues to get messages of congratulations upon his return from the hospital and the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph subscription drive continues to go along with gratifying success. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page gives to Father Cox's unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission and Father Cox needs this assistance today more than ever for you. Let's hear from you if you solve it—but you probably won't!

HINT ON CIPHER THAT BAFFLES

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Well, are you having a lot of fun with this cipher? It surely is hard. This fellow Traynor made up a good one; that's what you wanted, wasn't it? There isn't much fun in the easy ones.

Here's a tip that may help: Divide the letters into groups of threes and draw up an alphabet. That should be enough of a clue

Your Income Tax

Bad Debt Exemptios Claims Explained

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

Bad debts constitute another deduction from income which reaches an amount of importance on the returns of many taxpayers.

Claim for debts must be deducted from income in the years during which they were definitely determined to be uncollectible. Where books have been kept they also must have been charged off in the same year. The reason for this provision is obvious. If the debt were not charged off in the year in which the tax deduction was made, the government could not be absolutely certain that the claim is uncollectible and that the debt would not be deducted on the tax return more than once.

Deductions for bad debts may be handled in either of two ways. Actual losses may be deducted or an annual reserve may be deducted. In explaining this provision of the law, the Bureau of Internal Revenue says:

"Taxpayers were given an option for 1921 to select either of the two methods. The method used in the return for 1921 must be used in returns for subsequent years unless permission is granted by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to change to the other method. Application to change must be made at least 30 days prior to the close of the taxable year for which the change is to be effective. However, a taxpayer filing a first return in 1932 may select either of the two methods, subject to the approval of the commissioner upon examination of the return. Permission to adopt the reserve method is limited to taxpayers having a large number of accounts where credit is extended over a considerable period of time. It is not granted for the purpose of handling one specific debt.

"What constitutes a "reasonable addition" to a reserve for bad debts must be determined in light of the facts, and will vary as between classes of business and with conditions of business prosperity."

CHAPTER XII.

When the food was ready, without a word Sue hoved out Charlie's plate and coffee cup on the cockpit floor. A little later a dish of canned fruit appeared. Then the doors were closed again. When he was through, he quietly stacked his dishes and without a word passed them down to her.

This now became their routine. She cooking and making up his berth and putting the cabin to rights. And during the three days of pleasant weather they spoke not one word. One or the other would break under the strain, of course. Sooner or later. But Charlie knew which one it would have to be. There never was a warrior more grimly set to carry on than he. At that, she had cracked a little. She'd said she wouldn't cook. Well, she was cooking! Sue was naturally the busy sort. Always had been. And he was counting on that.

With that westerly breeze holding well most of the time, the Sue fairly ate up the distance; the daily runs were 158 knots, 182 and 163. How she could travel! Charlie, taking his log and working out his sights on the chart, felt all the thrills of a protracted horse race. He could hardly sleep. If his figures were correct, they were now off South Carolina or Georgia, about 300 miles out.

SUE ENJOYS SELF

That night the breeze failed somewhat. By morning they were nearly becalmed. Sue, in the place she had adopted for her own, on the forward deck, seemed more restless. She didn't stretch out in the sun, but sat up, leaning against the cabin trunk on the higher starboard side. Occasionally she glanced aft, not directly at, him, but in his general direction.

The flying fish were out. Pretty soon she'd see them. Probably she'd be excited then. Might forget herself. He rather hoped she would.

Sure enough! She did see them. Darting creatures, flitting from one slow wave-crest to another. He heard a sound, not unlike a squeal. She was sitting up alertly. Finally one came aboard, almost at her feet. She leaped at it; held it up, a glittering, squirming little thing, caught at the rail and turned right toward him, crying, "Look, Charlie! See. I've caught one!"

He nodded. Well, she had spoken first! Even though she turned quickly away and resumed her seat on the deck. He was right about her. The comfortable, staunch little ship, the sunny, healthy life, the magic of warm breezes and the boundless mystery of the sea, had caught her fancy. She was enjoying it as a child might.

Apparently she'd forgotten her infatuation for airplanes and for the big flight, even for that aviator. Once again she had surrendered to an atmosphere. Put her ashore among gay people, and in a week she'd be another girl altogether. She'd always give herself up, live wholly in the moment. His settled bitterness deepened.

GETS FRIENDLY

There were thousands of the flying fish. In swift little schools they sailed blindly about. Another struck the staysail. A few others bounced on the cabin top and bounced off again. Two or three more fell into the cockpit.

"Look here, Sue!" Charlie called, "we may as well gather these up and have them for lunch. A little fresh food won't hurt us."

"Take the wheel," said he "and I'll clean them. Just keep her headed this way."

Her eyes danced as she settled herself in the helmsman's seat. "My word," thought Charlie, "she might as well be all out for a party!" And grimly he set to work on the fish.

After a little she remarked, looking off forward, "After all, Charlie, I don't know why we need keep on being disagreeable."

He sat up straight, eyeing her. "In the name of Heaven, Sue, why not?"

"Well, I mean ... well, after all, here we are!"

Synopsis

Young Charlie Janes, formerly engaged to Sue Hemingway, finds that sudden wealth and a prolonged trip to Europe have turned her head and taken her out of his world. Charlie buys a boat, intending to try forgetfulness in voyaging. Sue returns unexpectedly. Her father tells Charlie she is planning a trans-Atlantic flight with a young aviator she met abroad. Sue goes for sail with Charlie. To try and bring her to her senses, Charlie starts on his voyage with Sue on board. Angry at first, Sue finally becomes submissive.

Now Go On

Had she actually forgotten? Or was she making a cold-blooded play at him? Could you beat a girl!

"A few days of pleasant weather doesn't change the situation we're in, Sue."

"But what earthly good is there in being so nasty, Charlie?"

"Reason a-plenty," he muttered, and savagely scraped out the entrails of a fish, over the side.

There was a silence. Then this from her: "I'm beginning to think you don't like me any more."

He bristled, snorted—"Beginning?"

CHARLIE CYNICAL

She became pensive, and (he felt) consciously graceful and pretty. She was beginning to tan a clean brown, and it became her. She knew that, of course. There were mirrors aboard. And she was all out ("hell-bent" was the word that came to mind) to use her beauty on him. Women were conscienceless. They hadn't character or principles. The only thing you could possibly do to keep them out of mischief was to shut them up and make them work. Let 'em loose and they simply raised a fuss every time. The Turks had it right. Marry them, if you must, but shut them up.

She murmured—he barely caught it—"You used to say you loved me."

He turned red with rage. "And this very week you told me you hated me!"

"But I was mad then, Charlie."

She really appeared to regard that as an answer. "When I told you I loved you I was crazy," he blurted out. "You'd better go down and cook the fish!"

Without another word, meekly (but prettily, with her boyish white cotton hat tipped saucily on one side of her shapely head), she rose, smoothed down her blouse against her slim body, picked up the fish, and did as she was bid.

Charlie was mad all day, against the very nature of all womankind. He wouldn't talk. He didn't propose to let those sly arts of her twist him again into a disadvantageous position.

She appeared actually to have forgotten that aviator. Perversely, Charlie began to think of him with a measure of sympathy. After being compelled to leave him flat, cooling his heels at the East Boston Airport, she'd simply fallen for the spell of the sea; and now, quite as a matter of course, she was seizing upon Charlie himself because he was the nearest man. Conscienceless! He caught himself angrily muttering Kipling's lines (while the pleasant sizzle and odor of frying fish floated with unnerving effect up the companionway):

"And now we know that she never knew why,

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Valentine Day being just around the corner, the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club who attended the meetings today had that holiday spirit and the youngsters spent considerable time exchanging valentines, both comical and sentimental with each other.

The meetings today were in the nature of a Valentine party, the prizes which were distributed to the winners of the various games and contests were heart-shaped and followed the spirit of the occasion.

Shirley Malitovsky, popular young member of the Manor Chapter, is just one of the many youngsters who is having a Valentine party Tuesday. Those who have already received their invitations to Shirley's party are: Lenore Katz, Larry Becker, Rosslyn Smith, Henry Mazer, Cecil Becker, Helen M. Johns, Leonard Fischler, Helen Campbell, Herbert Shubin, Ervine Yellowshaw.

How many members of the Sun-Telegraph - Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club are reading every day Quin Hall's new comic strip, "Junior"? And how many have filled out the application blank at the bottom of this page? Fill out the application blank and mail it today to Quin Hall and you'll be a member of the newest boy and girl club in Pittsburgh.

Now We Can Join the Explorers' Club

We still claim that fine feathers make good dusters. And that is why we insist Radio City is a magnificent chunk of frost-bitten music.

It's bigger than an elephant's shadow at twilight. It's so far from the box office to the stage that if they dated your ticket it wouldn't be any good when you got there.

You can travel through one of the lobbies in about a week if you have enough food and water. The grand lounge is fine if a statue doesn't fall on you.

The aisles look like the new viaduct from Jersey City to Newark. The ushers are polite. They show you the straight road dead ahead. But if they were real gentlemen they would carry you on their backs.

A fellow told us there were only 17 rows of seats in the orchestra. We counted twice that many.

It was dark when we got there. So we sat in the first empty lap we came to. The picture was on. There was some thunder and lightning in the picture. We skirmished up a couple of rows when the lightning cracked.

Then 12 ushers marched by going south. We took advantage of the military escort and gained a dozen rows. They might have shot me for a spy.

We could hear some faint noises from a million musicians in the pit. We knew we were getting near the battlefront.

A lady staggered up the aisle on her way back to civilization. Another fellow and I got to the vacant seat together in the dark. The only way to tell an empty seat is to go along feeling faces. If there is no face there you sit down.

The other guy and I felt each other's faces. He hadn't shaved either. We both sat down together. The bicycle wasn't built for two, so when the news reel came on we both dashed down the alley for a seat that was empty from the back, but was a short guy from the front.

Finally, at the end of the Micky Mice business we stampeded right into the end of things. We ran 100 yards in 11 seconds and got a seat. We should also have got a loving cup with it.

We were in the front row of Radio City Music Hall. It proves opportunities still exist for a young man in America. The show was over.

Study Rate Contracts

It May Enable You to Reduce Your Electric Light Bill. Brief Comment on Local News.

The Sun-Telegraph disclosed that many persons in Pittsburgh were paying more for electricity than was necessary. Their contracts with the Duquesne Light Company were based on rate schedule "C," whereas it would have been to their advantage to use schedule "B," a special rate for houses and apartments of four rooms or less. The company, inexcusably, had let them pay the higher rate.

Our attention has been called to a similar situation in another state. There, a customer who had been taking electricity on the basis of a monthly "demand charge" found that it would have been more advantageous to use a yearly "demand charge" contract. The change is accordingly being made and the power company is being required to refund the overcharges.

In the state referred to, a public utility offering its customers a variety of contracts, is under legal compulsion to sell current to a user under the most favorable contract applying to his conditions. Pennsylvania should have a similar law in place of the present system with its "Let the buyer beware!" policy.

The Senate Utilities Investigating Committee, if empowered to continue its work, might well look into this matter of confusing variety in the rate schedules, with a view to preparing recommendations for remedial legislation. If the Senate, as now seems likely, drops the utility investigation, the Public Service Commission should promulgate corrective regulations.

It will be a shame if the utility inquiry is aban- doned; for, until blocked by court injunctions, Oliver K. Eaton, the investigating committee's counsel, was unearthing evidence that strengthened the suspicion that some of the utilities companies used bribery and other corrupt methods to gain the privilege of charging exorbitant rates. The evidence should be sifted to the bottom.

Those who are well informed concerning affairs at Harrisburg are confident the Legislature will pass and Gov. Pinchot will approve the Schwartz local option bill for Sunday baseball. It will be disappointing if the lawmakers do not authorize Sunday movies, too; but the Schwartz bill will be the opening wedge for more liberal privileges at succeeding sessions of the Legislature.

A few timid souls fear the slightest relaxation in the Blue Law restrictions will imperil the church. Let them look at conditions in other states which have no Blue Laws and they will find no justification for their fears. As Dr. John A. McCallum, a Philadelphia Presbyterian minister, said in commenting on the matter, "People who want to go to church will still do so. Force has never been an aid to religion."

Judge Samuel H. Gardner is quoted as saying that if the employes of the Monaco Club, recently arrested in the raid of the state police on this notorious speakeasy and gambling house, are convicted, their punishment will be severe if they refuse to reveal their employers. It is even more important that the public officials responsible for the club's long immunity from prosecution should be named.

Judge Gardner is further quoted as saying he will not direct a grand jury investigation of the Monaco Club scandal unless a petition is presented by District Attorney Andrew T. Park or others. There is ample warrant for such a petition in the shameful fact that this unsavory resort operated in open violation of the law, as was repeatedly published in the newspapers, for many months, just across the street from the Oakland Police Station.

George Taylor, 65, an attendant at Mayview, died yesterday of injuries received when he was attacked by an insane patient. A tribute of respect is due him as a public servant who lost his life in the performance of duty. Tragedies like this remind us that peace has its heroes no less than war—men and women who daily risk injury or death in the performance of their work.

Capt. Wilson C. Price, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, reports that one member of the patrol was killed, 11 suffered fractured skulls, 26 suffered fractured limbs, 18 broke ribs, and nine received dislocations of limbs, in the line of duty last year. That shows the danger of operating motorcycles at all hours of the day and night and in all kinds of weather. We salute the brave and hard-working patrolmen.

The Pittsburgh Motor Club has ascertained that the officers of the State Highway Patrol dismissed with a warning 16 violators of the traffic code for every one that they arrested last year. Presumably those who were allowed to go free were guilty of only the most petty infractions. Leniency under such circumstances is justified.

Duquesne University deserves applause for its plan to open a school for the unemployed, in which instruction in subjects such as English, economics, civics, history and psychology will be given without charge to students over 30 who have had at least two years of high school training and are certified as without jobs and unable to pay for tuition. The classes undoubtedly will be largely attended and productive of good.

"Gunmen Gangsters and Their Stage Beauty Friends" is the title of an interesting article in the American Weekly, to be issued as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It calls attention to the relationship between some of the most notorious New York racketeers and well-known show girls. The Weekly contains some fascinating illustrations.

Watch It Grow!

By Nelson Harding

Watch that seed the farmer sows,
See how rapidly it grows.
Soon that unproductive field,
Will a bumper harvest yield.

Let us sow, on every hand,
Seed in that long fallow land,
And the planting of that seed
Will produce the crop we need.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

"Inside Dope" on Lovers

"You can usually tell a bride-to-be," says Reno Ruth, "but you can seldom tell her enough to make her cancel the wedding invitations."

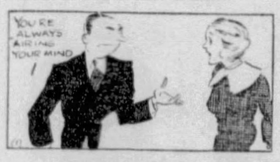
"Does a wife expect too much loyalty?" reads an advertisement. But, there is no such THING as "too much loyalty." You can't be just a little bit loyal, any more than you can be just a little bit honest or a little bit DEAD.



A man doesn't mind so much when a woman changes her mind—it's her passion for "airing" it that drives him to distraction.

The first girl who occupies a man's heart seldom becomes a permanent guest. There are lots of transients after her. But few women appear to be finicky about accepting emotional leftovers, these days.

* * *

Even cosmetics aren't selling so well, any more. A girl doesn't have to have a wonderful complexion in order to be popular—all she needs is the pocket-book you love to touch.

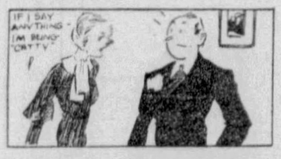
When a man tells a girl the unpleasant truth about another man—that's "the duty of every Decent Fellow"; but when the girl gives him the "inside dope" on another woman—that's just "feminine cattiness."



When a woman declares that she would trust her husband with ANY woman, anywhere, you can't help wondering whether she is a good liar—or whether HE is.

Once a skilled amorist has fed a woman plenty of well-done and highly seasoned flattery, she will never, never again have the slightest interest in any "honest" man that Old Diogenes might have dug up for her.

* * *

A divorce used to be the finale to all a woman's social aspirations; today, it is more often the grande overture.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Someone would hand me a circular for a shoe sale. So here I am, all merry and bright. I should have stopped at home first, to tidy up a bit. Anyway, I'm wearing the new hose supporters from the Burlington Arcade. Nothing betrays age like droopy sox.

The last big sale I attended was in a department store. A panic. And I'm not worth that in a panic. Every time I get in a crowd, it develops the mass notion to shove me around. All the time, it does. This fellow hunkered in the corner seems morose. I'll perk him up.

Nice day for the shoe sale, Mister! He looks away. I'll scatter no more pearls. Who does he think he is—W. L. Douglas or somebody? If he'd been friendly, I'd have told him that one about the drunk trying to buy a soap dish in a five-and-ten. Nobody will wait on me.

I'll snap my fingers. They don't snap well. That's from working my fingers—I mean fingers—to the bone, for people who do not appreciate me. Once upon a time, I was one of the best finger snappers in the back rooms. Ask them in Cincinnati. But don't say I said anything.

Wonder what kind of shoes I want? That was a darb of a pair that I wore to the Vinton Bean Dinner, 20 years ago. Pebbly patent leather, needle-pointed, and with red pull-on straps. That was the year that McIntyre and Resener's Silver Star Minstrels made dramatic history. And $6.40.

This floor walker with the lapel flower has asked me for the tenth time if anyone has waited upon me. What does he think! Does he imagine I'm the type to buy a pair of shoes and loiter? I'm many things, but not a shoe-store loafer. Not with all the places there are.

* * *

For years, I've wanted to ride on those sliding ladders in shoe emporiums. But that old whatsit in the cutaway is keeping an eye on me. There! He looked the other way. I'll edge over to a ladder. A step up. They run on ball bearings. Look, I'm standing on only one foot. This is beginning to fascinate. I'm a gypsy at heart, anyway. When I get to the end of the store, I'll swing off like Mr. Bennett, the Hocking Valley conductor. You know, little running steps. Now we've stopped, and that floor walker is coming my way. But he's smiling. Wants fun? Well, he can ride back with me. Shucks, he's found a clerk to wait on me.

I wanted to hook one foot in a ladder step and hang straight out like they do in circus perch acts. I hope this salesman doesn't turn out to be a Harvard man. I came for a pair of good, roomy walking shoes. But Harvard men do something to me. I'd probably mince out wearing a pair of patent leather pumps, with cute silk bows. Goody, he isn't from Harvard. He asks: "What size?" A Harvard man would say: "Your dimensions, please!" or fancy it up some way.

* * *

Why should I tell my size out loud? People know too much about me as it is. Don't look, but that girl in brown is glancing at me, now and then. He's off to get me a few samples. You should see him run up the ladder. And can he slide! That's all right, he's probably been at it for years. Bet he didn't do any better than I, the first day. He's back with his arms filled. He wants to take off my right shoe. I'll slip it off myself. There! No comfort like removing a shoe. The Great Horn Spoon! They were all right when I put them on this morning.

He's trying to act as though he doesn't see it. A guy like that would ignore the Hoosac Tunnel Or Radio City. I'll act pre-occupied. It's hard to with a big toe sticking right out before all those people. I had no business coming out today, anyway. Wish I had a pack of cards. I'd show that disappearing ace trick to divert him. Maybe he'd sneak up to the corner and get a late edition for me. I don't want him sitting there with my toe out.

* * *

He says not to worry. It happens often. Anything but baby-ing me. A little of that, and I'd have one of my spells. I'm getting light-headed, anyway. Notice how I blink every whip-stitch. If he'll just get my shoes on, I'll take them. And a pair of overshoes for good measure. In fact, I'll take cyanide, if he'll mix up a pint.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I BELIEVE IN YOUTH!
I believe in
The curiosity and conceit
Of Youth;
The laughter and carelessness,
The extravagance and silliness,
The restlessness,
The rudeness,
The red rebellion
Of Youth.
I believe in them all!

Mind you,
I don't kid myself
About Youth.
I know its faults.
I know those faults
Are goat-getters.
Many a time
They get my goat,
But that, too,
For it's a good thing
For me and for you—
For all of us
Who have brought the world
To the mess it's in Today—
To have our goats gotten!

For what is the nature
Of these goats
Which we hold so precious?
Just what are These Sacred Things
Which Youth "mustn't touch"?
You know,
And I know,
Though it shames us
To answer—
They are simply
Our laziness and ignorance,
Our cowardice and comfort,
Our smugness and greediness,
Our petty prejudices,
Our festering hates.
These are
The Sacred Goats
Which Youth gets.

THANK GOD
THAT YOUTH GETS THEM!

Thank God
For the restlessness of Youth,
Which shoves us
Out of our rut;
For the laughter of Youth,
Which shames our tears,
And the courage of Youth,
Which challenges our fears;
For the rudeness of Youth,
Which blasts our complacency;
For the rebellions of Youth,
Which refuse to accept
The cruelty and stupidity
Of the Status Quo.
For all the clamor and fury
Of Youth insurgent,
Thank God!

Above all,
Thank God
For Youth's dreams,
For in those dreams,
If anywhere,
Lies the world's salvation;
Not in our twisted planning;
Our evasions and alibis
And coverings-up,
But in Youth's dream—
Youth's lovely, reckless dreaming—
Lies our only hope
Of a world
Made clean again.

SO BELIEVE IN YOUTH!
Believe in youth,
Though it humiliates you;
Though it exposes you;
Though it wrecks your comfort,
And empties your pocket book,
And plays mischief
With your plans.
For Youth is your hope;
Youth is your fresh chance!

Youth is not something
Apart from your life;
Youth is a part
Of your life.
Youth is the song
You used to sing.
Youth is the flame
You used to light.
Youth is the battle
You longed to fight.
Youth is your own self,
Starting all over again!
BELIEVE IN YOUTH!
DISCARD YOUR AGE;
BE YOUNG, WITH YOUTH, AGAIN.

Latin-American Trade; Drummers, Not Marines

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

An announcement from the State Department regarding a hands-off policy in Latin-America is credited to the forthcoming administration. It is to be hoped that such a policy will be pursued. There is something of almost incredible stupidity in our traditional policy in that quarter. There is every reason why the United States should be on the most cordial and understanding terms with the nations of South and Central America.

They are our neighbors. We share with them in the guardianship of the western world. There should be a brisk trade between the northern and the southern continents. But we have blundered where we have not worse than blundered, through the generations.

The Monroe Doctrine has in later years been an irritation, not because there is anything wrong in the doctrine enunciated by Monroe, but because high flying imperialists in this country have interpreted it to mean that we are the boss. No such thought ever was in Monroe's head.

Found Evidence of Deep Hostility

Our misunderstandings with Mexico date back to a blunder at the time of Mexican independence. The Mexicans had declared their independence and made it good, but there was an interminable delay in Washington in according the recognition indicated by the sending of a minister. We sent a snooper to Mexico to gather information. We waited. Meanwhile England, France and Spain sent their diplomatic representatives to the City of Mexico. It was long after that before we followed their example.

He was a brilliant man of accomplishment. As a youth he had visited Russia and so impressed the Czar that he became an intimate at the palace and was offered a high position in the military or civil service if he would remain. He returned.

When he reached Vera Cruz and made the journey to the capital he was estounded to find evidence of deep hostility. At the capital it was worse. The newspapers were pronouncedly anti-American. Finally Poinsett found that the anti-American propaganda was subsidized by the English, French and Spanish ministers. We had been pictured as an arrogant nation with a disposition to gobble up the nations to the south.

The thought behind it all was the Latin-American trade. Our European competitors that early were thinking of trade; and realizing our advantage, geographically, they began to sow the seed of prejudice. That seed still bears fruit.

Brought Home The Poinsettia

Poinsett did the best he could. But his most famous achievement was that he brought home to us the Poinsettia. Not many Americans know where it got its name.

He returned to Charleston, to his beautiful house there, where the breakfasts became almost as famous as those of Rogers in London. He was Jackson's right arm in South Carolina in the nullification fight. Later he was in the cabinet.

Happy Hunting Ground For Greed

The idea planted in the Latin-American mind in those early times has been strengthened by the disposition of some American interests to look upon Latin-America as a happy hunting ground for greed. Our financiers have not done much to endear us to our southern neighbors. Within the last few years, in some of these countries, some of our financiers have increased bitterness and suspicion against us by their tactics. The bribing of the son of a high dignitary to assist in putting through a measure not in the interest of his country did not help.

The American government did not do it.

But the American government and the American people were thought responsible by the man in the street.

We Argue—And Do Not Sell

Twenty years ago Charles B. Landis, a Congressman, made a notable speech in the House protesting against our indifference to Latin-American trade. It set forth the possibilities—and they were tremendous. It dwelt upon the rapid growth and development in that quarter and envisaged the time when it would be a choice market of the world. That would be, he thought, when the value of the European market would be diminishing. He urged trade agreements built on a friendly political attitude and a more sympathetic attitude toward the requirements of the market in the South.

The speech made no impression.

Consular reports show one reason why we have not cashed in on our trade opportunities. Thus, using a crude illustration, the people there are in the market for a plow. "We want the handle turned this way," says the prospective buyer. "Oh, no," we reply with a superior air, "you want it as we make it." And thus we argue—and do not sell. The German or the Englishman: "And how do you want it?" they ask. "Very well, you shall have it that way"—and they sell. We have sacrificed heavily by this arrogant refusal to consider the wishes of the customer.

Dollar Diplomacy Returned

Many years ago James G. Blaine had the vision to see the vast possibilities from political friendship and commercial intimacy with the Latin-Americans.

Then Elihu Root made a pilgrimage, while Secretary of State, through the South and Central American nations, seeking to dissipate the notion that we are enemies with designs on the independence of these peoples.

Then Dollar Diplomacy reared its head; and when Philander Knox, who succeeded Root, made a similar journey he was received coldly and with deep suspicion. When the Taft administration ended the current of hostility was running strongly south of the Rio Grande.

When Wilson assumed power, Bryan, his Secretary of State, set himself to the task assiduously of cultivating our southern neighbors. He had made a tour a few years before and impressed the Latin-Americans with his friendship and his fairness. On assuming office he suppressed [illegible] American diplomats before he sent for those from Europe. He told them whenever they wished to see him to call him up at office or home any hour in the day or night. They departed with a friendly feeling which was reflected in the tone of the Latin-American press. Real progress toward an understanding was being made in those days.

Then Dollar Diplomacy returned.

Sooner or later we shall learn that in going after trade a corps drummers with an understanding of the psychology and wishes of the customers are worth more than a thousand Marines with bayonets.

The danger is that by the time we learn, South America may be lost to us, and won by Europe.

We Need Trade Today

We do not pretend to have the slightest inkling of the plans of the future administration, but it is a safe surmise that it will more nearly resemble the policy of Bryan than that of Knox. More drummers and fewer Marines; more seeking of healthy trade and less exploitation through the financiers; more respect due a proud and great people and less condescension.

And that will be common sense. For we need trade today, and shall need it tomorrow; and just now when England announces that she must stand with Europe, it is about time for us to begin to cultivate the peoples on our side the water.

And one thing not connected with government would help—the broadening of our knowledge of the cultural life of the Latin-Americans; for the mass of our people are abysmally ignorant of it. An exchange of lectures between North and South American universities would be invaluable to both continents.

Wise Words

That all men would be cowards if they dare,
Some men have had courage to declare. —Crabbe.

Calvin Coolidge's Advice

Only a few days before his death, Calvin Coolidge penned what proved to be his last message to the American people when inditing a letter to Bradley Kelley, of the American Radio News Corporation, director of Hearst station WINS, New York. The former President's farewell counsel was read over the radio by Claude G. Bowers, special writer for Hearst newspapers, as a part of a New Year's broadcast. Looking prophetically to the present day, it said:

"For the year 1933 it seems to me that we need co-operation and charity. The resources of our country are sufficient to meet our requirements if we can use them to help each other. We should co-operate to promote all kinds of business activity. We should do what we can in the way of charity. If all that is implied in these two words could be put into operation, not only would our economic condition begin steadily to improve, but our destitute would secure ample relief. I can think of no better resolution for the new year than to work in these directions."
